Congress Predicts Wage-Price Rules Will Come Along

Price Administrator First Step and He Is Mayor of Toledo—When Is Question

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—President Truman's appointment of a price administrator touched off predictions in Congress today that wage-price controls are sure to follow.

There was not much disagreement about the likelihood of their being invoked eventually, but legislators had varying estimates about how soon.

Mr. Truman late yesterday named Mayor Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo to be price chief—a job he had said it would take a man with guts to fill.

Will Cut Into Economy

There were signs, too, that materials and other controls will begin to cut into the civilian economy. Chairman W. Stuart Symington of the National Security Resources Board told newsmen yesterday that all segments of the economy will be hurt. He spoke of an impending shift in the mobilization program from "light gray" to "dark gray."

Senate Republican Leader Wherry of Nebraska said DiSalle's selection as price administrator indicates "that the President is getting ready to impose wage-price controls, at least on a selective basis." He added: "He is not appointing a man to that job just to get around."

'Awfully Close'

Senator Maybank (D-SC), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said he believes "we are coming awfully close to wage-price controls," and added:

"I can't see how they can be avoided unless there is a drastic improvement in the world situation."

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, said:

"You can't spend perhaps up to $50,000,000,000 a year for defense without controls, including wage-price controls. Inasmuch as we are going to spend about that much, in my judgment wage-price controls are inevitable."

Ives' Viewpoint

Senator Ives (R-NY) said the nomination of DiSalle indicates to him that the administration is "getting the machinery ready to slap on controls." Ives added, however, that he does not expect any overall wage-price control program before spring.

Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, told a reporter it is going to be "very difficult" to avoid wage-price controls.

Taft praised the appointment of DiSalle, who will resign as mayor of Toledo to take over his new duties.

"Mike DiSalle is a good man—he is all right," Taft remarked. "There is hope a good job will be done."

The 42-year-old DiSalle is the only Democrat in the top economic stabilization triumvirate. The overall director, Alan Valentine, is a Republican. So is Cyrus S. Ching, DiSalle's counterpart for wage stabilization.

Truman Says Fight Is One for Nation's Survival; Three Points Loom

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Full-scale Republican support of the Korean war effort was promised by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) today as President Truman called Congress leaders into grim conference on the military crisis.

The President summoned the nation's military and diplomatic chieftains to sit in with the lawmakers for a review of what Mr. Truman has described as a fight for "our own national security and survival."

Further pointing up the urgency of the world situation and the impending threat of a new full-scale world war was an early personal meeting between Mr. Truman and Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain. The Washington talks, which probably will start this week-end, were suggested by Attlee. The White House said they will cover Korea and other problems.

Momentous Possibilities

At issue in today's White House conference may be such momentous possibilities as (1) use of the atomic bomb against Chinese Communist troops, (2) permission for Gen. Douglas MacArthur to send bombers blasting north of the Manchurian border and (3) how fast to step up manpower and industrial mobilization at home.

The President already had made clear one vital point—come what may, U. S. forces won't voluntarily be withdrawn from Korea.

As word came from top officials that the expanding defense effort is going to start hurting all segments of the civilian economy, there were these other developments:

1. Mr. Truman named Mayor Michael V. DiSalle of Toledo to be price administrator—an action which many lawmakers took to mean that wage and price controls will be imposed at some point in the not too distant future.

Offers Defense Bill

2. The administration offered its long-awaited civil defense bill, providing for an administrator who would have vast powers in event of an attack on this country. Its fate in Congress was uncertain.

To back up the forces in Korea and his pledge to intensify U. S. efforts to help other free nations rearm, the President planned to give Democratic and Republican legislators available details on a request for speedy action on additional atomic and military funds expected to run between $10,000,000,000 and $14,000,000,000.

Taft, who heads the Senate GOP Policy Committee, said he thinks Republicans will go all out for any measure calculated to bring relief to hard pressed United Nations forces in Korea. He was not invited to the White House conference, limited largely to appropriations, armed services and foreign relations committee members. Taft is on none of those.

G.O.P. Is Willing

"The Republicans are willing to do anything necessary to meet this dangerous situation," Taft said. "Of course, the executive has the responsibility and there isn't much we can do until the President acts."

Chairman McMahon (D.-Conn.) of the Senate-House Atomic Committee said the present short session of Congress will be asked to approve an atomic development program of "considerable magnitude." Lawmakers guess this will involve around $1,500,000,000.

This was in line with reports that the military appropriation request the President has said will be ready soon has grown from $7,500,000,000 proposed a few days ago to as much as $14,000,000,000.

On the question of using the atomic bomb, the weight of opinion seemed to be against employing that awesome weapon now. But there were exceptions.

Military observers doubted that the A-Bomb could be used effectively against such targets as are provided in Korea or in Manchuria where the U.N. has not yet given MacArthur permission to make attacks. The air force declined to say how quickly it could deliver one of the bombs.

New Attacks Expected in Northwest

Gives No Answer About Suitability of Bomb Targets—Prisoners Tell Intentions

River Is Crossed

Estimated 10,000 Reds Go Over Chongchon With Materiel

Tokyo, Dec. 1 (AP)—General MacArthur's top intelligence officer said today the United Nations situation in Korea is not desperate and implied the atomic bomb is not needed to stem the Chinese Red tide.

He reported the allied line in the critical northwest is being stabilized. The U. S. Eighth Army retreated to this shortened line extending inland from the Yellow Sea after its severe setback by the Chinese in the past week.

Eighth Army sources expected strong new Red attacks on that front Friday night or Saturday. A spokesman said enemy strength was building up south of the Chongchon river.

Wave after wave of U. S. Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers lashed at the Chinese buildup south of the frozen stream.

In the northeast—across the peninsula's mountainous spine—United Nations forces were reported making a fighting retreat southward on both sides of the big Changjin reservoir.

Assesses War

Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, MacArthur's G-2 boss, assessed the war situation for correspondents in a 2,500-word statement in Tokyo, and then submitted to questioning.

Asked if there were any targets in North Korea suitable for attack with the A-bomb, Willoughby said: "I would prefer not to answer. In any case, I am not prepared to accept this situation as one of a desperate nature calling for desperate measures."

The question was prompted by President Truman's declaration Thursday that atomic weapons are under consideration for use if necessary against the Chinese.

This briefing of war correspondents in Tokyo came as the retreating U. N. forces on the northwest took positions on a line 30 miles north of the former Red Korean capital, Pyongyang.

Back to 38th Is Goal

Willoughby said prisoners indicated the Chinese, possibly under the command of Red Gen. Lin Piao, were trying to drive the allies back below the 38th parallel—100 air miles south of the present northwest line.

At advanced Eighth Army headquarters in the northwest sector where 200,000 Chinese are reported on the march, AP Correspondent Don Huth reported an estimated 10,000 Chinese had crossed the winding Chongchon river with heavy material and were moving south.

Another Red force of undetermined size and supported by armor was reported across the river at Kunu, 17 miles inland from the Yellow Sea.

Both Chinese forces were under air attack. Results were not reported by late Friday evening.

Local Police Arrest Two In Sport Shop for Burglary

Hospital Fund Passes $500,000

Remaining Sum, $350,000, to Be Sought in 6 Remaining Days

Reports from volunteer workers, at a dinner meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel last night, pushed The Kingston Hospital's $850,000 building fund over the half-million dollar mark.

Announcement of the $504,707 total standing of the fund to date, was greeted with enthusiasm by the workers attending the fourth report meeting of the public campaign. Team members reported 1,033 new subscriptions amounting to $21,206, bringing the total for this phase of the campaign to 2,375 subscriptions for $68,085.

With the close of the general public campaign scheduled for December 6, the volunteers were urged by Abraham Streifer, public campaign chairman, to "put forth the extra effort to make this the most successful project this community has ever undertaken."

Results 'Encouraging'

Calling the results to date "most encouraging," he continued:

"What has been accomplished this far, is a tribute to your hard work. But we can not, we must not, slow down now. I know we can count on each one of you to make an extra effort, in the next six-days remaning in this public campaign, to see every person whose name is listed on the cards you have selected."

The size of many of the contributions obtained by the workers, he pointed out, indicates public acceptance of the six-payment plan which enables a subscriber to pledge an amount greater than might be met conveniently with cash on hand.

Reports Analyzed

Analysis of reports at last night's meeting showed that the volunteer's organization for the city of Kingston, under the chairmanship of John J. Schwenk, has obtained 949 subscriptions amounting to $34,310, since the public

Bunce and Beatty Taken at Gunpoint Early This Morning by City Police

Officers George Bowers and George Dougherty, of the local police, walked in on an alleged burlary at 588½ Broadway while it was still in progress early today.

They brought to headquarters two young men, four automatic .38 calibre pistols, a .45 and a .38 calibre revolver, two knives, a screw driver, wrench and two packages of ammunition. One of the pistols was a German P-38.

The two, booked on third degree burglary charges are Frank Bunce, 28, of 186 Third avenue and Victor Beatty, 29, of Zena. They were brought before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today and the case was adjourned for examination on Dec. 12. Attorney Charles Saccoman represented them in court. Bail was to be fixed later.

Noise Is Giveaway

Police action, which resulted in the arrest, followed a call from a tenant who resides over Spada's Sport Shop, 588½ Broadway, at 3:03 a. m. The report said noise was "coming from the sports shop," and Lt. William Leonard and Sgt. James Cullum at headquarters dispatched the officers there at once.

The officers, according to the police report, "on approaching the rear of the building found that the rear door had been broken and entry had been made to the shop. They entered with drawn pistols and apprehended Bunce and Beatty."

'Caught in Act'

The two were "in the act of burglarizing" the police report charged, and they allegedly had in their possession the pistols, knives, ammunition and other items. One of the pistols, it was found, was formerly owned by a member of the police department and had been sold some time ago.

Michael Spada, of Glasco, owner of the shop, was notified and asked to come to police headquarters. He later barred up the broken store door pending repairs.

Two Have Records

Records at the sheriff's and district attorney's offices show that Bunce had served six months in the county jail in 1948 for possession of a weapon (a misdemeanor) and that Beatty, only about two weeks ago, had completed a sentence of 118 days in the county jail on a petit larceny charge.

Police Chief Raymond VanBuren said today that Officers Bowers and Dougherty did commendable work in going into the sports shop after the two.

Browder Is Jailed After Failure to Post $1,500 Bail

Judge Refuses Liberty on Personal Bond —Field Enters His Plea in Court

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Earl Browder, longtime No. 1 American Communist, was jailed today after he failed to put up $1,500 bond on a contempt of Congress charge.

Federal Judge Edward M. Curran turned down Browder's plea to remain at liberty on his personal bond.

Browder was indicted earlier this week on the contempt charge for refusing to answer questions before a Senate subcommittee during an investigation of Communist-in-government charges of Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.)

Had Over-Night Bag

Browder appeared in court for arraignment wearing a black suit and carrying an over-night bag, apparently in anticipation of going to jail.

Judge Curran asked Browder whether he had an attorney and he said he didn't. Next he was asked whether he had any money to employ an attorney and he said "no."

Asked whether he wanted the services of court-appointed counsel, Browder said he wished to serve as his own attorney.

Browder fenced with Judge Curran over entering a plea to the contempt charge. The ex-Communist chief contended the indictment was "rather puzzling" and "defective."

Judge Curran reminded him that he was in court today to enter his plea—guilty or not guilty.

"You do not consider the validity of the indictment?" Browder asked.

"Not at this time," the judge replied.

Would Attack Validity

Browder insisted he wanted to attack the validity of the indictment and Judge Curran finally gave him until Dec. 26 to do so. Then the question of bond arose.

The judge fixed bail at $1,500, rejected Browder's plea for personal bond and firmly told him: "You will have to stand committed until the bond is made."

Marshals then led Browder to the lockup in the courthouse basement for routine fingerprinting.

Browder had said in advance of his court appearance that he had "no resources or financial organization" and was not "going to assume financial obligations" to obtain bond.

Frederick Vanderbilt Field, New York millionaire indicted along with Browder and Philip J. Jaffee for refusing to answer questions of the Senate Investigating committee, pleaded innocent today.

Jaffee, editor of the defunct magazine Amerasia, is scheduled to enter his plea next Friday.

Truman Requests 18 Billions Soon

Would Spend 17 Billions for Armed Forces, Rest for Atomic Program

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—President Truman advised Congressional leaders today that he wants $17,000,000,000 more for the armed forces and $1,200,000,000 more for the atomic energy program as a result of the tense international situation.

This huge spending, representing a vast speed-up in the country's rearming, comes atop a previous prospective $50,000,000,000 government outlay this fiscal year.

The President told Democratic and Republican leaders of the staggering sums that will be needed at a tense, hour long White House conference.

For U. S. Forces

All this money, the Congress members said, would be used for United States forces, and not for the forces of other nations.

In a statement yesterday, Mr. Truman spoke also of a speed up in the defense arrangements of U. S. allies. Presumably, that will call for increased U. S. aid to them.

Senator Gurney (R-S.D.) said the huge fund increase is aimed at stepping up the armed forces to a level of 2,700,000 men in 1951.

"This will mean that we will have a large army a year earlier

Troops Fall Back Before Chinese Reds on Two Sides of Reservoir

Yonpo, Northeast Korea, Dec. 1 (AP)—Two marine pilots said today American troops were retreating before Chinese Red forces on both sides of the Changjin reservoir in northeast Korea.

One said he saw elements of the U. S. Seventh Infantry Division retreating south along the main road on the east side of the lake.

The other, flying over marine positions on the west side, said elements of the First Marine Division's Fifth Regiment were fighting their way south.

The said the American groups were trying to reach Hagaru on the south end of the lake. Both predicted they would get there.

Capt. Russell G. Patterson, Jr., Pensacola, Fla., said:

"Those damned Chinese are all over the place up there. They don't even run for cover. They just keep on going in pretty close formation.

"They were moving south along the lake. There were tanks in front and tanks in the rear. They were having to fight their way every inch of the way.

Plenty of Targets

"The Gooks (Chinese) were running along the ridges on their left flank firing away, then running behind the ridges for new positions.

"We let them have it every place we could. There were plenty of targets."

Patterson was in a flight of Corsairs helping elements of the Seventh Division's 32nd Regiment withdraw from positions along the east shore.

He predicted the Americans would "make it all right to Hagaru" by nightfall. But, he added, "They're getting fire from behind, on their left side and in front."

Theologian Denounces Idea Of Using A-Bomb on Chinese

Cleveland, Dec. 1 (AP)—Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, who keeps the United Nations informed of American Protestant opinion on world affairs, sounded a blunt "No" last night to suggest the atom bomb should be dropped on Communist China.

The Philadelphia theologian, who has strong influence on American Protestant opinion of world affairs, made the assertion in a speech to the General Assembly of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States at Cleveland's colorfully draped public auditorium.

"Confronted by imminent danger," said Dr. Nolde, "people are disposed to cast reason and judgment to the wind. In alarming proportions, there is for example the demand that we should now drop atomic bombs on Communist China and promptly invade Manchuria.

"I unhesitatingly express my personal opinion that these are the very things which we should not at this moment do.

"In the first place, until all other means have been explored and found impossible, the dropping of atomic bombs would not be morally justifiable. In the second place, we would be veritably playing into the hands of those who want to pin upon us the tangible responsibility for starting a world war."

Dr. Nolde, who is director of the Commission of the Churches on International Affairs of the World Council of Churches and the International Missionary Council, added:

"Be it noted that in saying this, I speak in the light of conditions as they exist today and allow that the conditions of tomorrow may be different."

Earlier this week, a commission of scholars of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in

Then Youngsters Belabor Santa, Who Becomes Snowball Target

Pekin, Ill., Dec. 1 (AP)—Santa Claus came to town yesterday and was snowballed out of a parade by a group of teen-age youngsters.

Santa, dressed in a red suit and riding in a red jeep, was the chief feature of a pre-Christmas parade in this central Illinois community of about 20,000 population.

It was a fine parade when it started—decorated floats, a miniature circus and bands, and Santa Claus riding near the end. He had smiled and waved to the crowds which lined the streets to watch the parade.

But some 40 youngsters of about junior high school age started firing snowballs at some other pupils who were in the parade. Then Santa became the main target.

Estimated 10,000 Reds Go Over Chongchon With Materiel

Tokyo, Dec. 1 (AP)—General MacArthur's top intelligence officer said today the United Nations situation in Korea is not desperate and implied the atomic bomb is not needed to stem the Chinese Red tide.

He reported the allied line in the critical northwest is being stabilized. The U. S. Eighth Army retreated to this shortened line extending inland from the Yellow Sea after its severe setback by the Chinese in the past week.

Eighth Army sources expected strong new Red attacks on that front Friday night or Saturday. A spokesman said enemy strength was building up south of the Chongchon river.

Wave after wave of U. S. Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers lashed at the Chinese buildup south of the frozen stream.

In the northeast—across the peninsula's mountainous spine—United Nations forces were reported making a fighting retreat southward on both sides of the big Changjin reservoir.

Assesses War

Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, MacArthur's G-2 boss, assessed the war situation for correspondents in a 2,500-word statement in Tokyo, and then submitted to questioning.

Asked if there were any targets in North Korea suitable for attack with the A-bomb, Willoughby said:

"I would prefer not to answer. In any case, I am not prepared to accept this situation as one of a desperate nature calling for desperate measures."

The question was prompted by President Truman's declaration Thursday that atomic weapons are under consideration for use if necessary against the Chinese.

This briefing of war correspondents in Tokyo came as the retreating U. N. forces on the northwest took positions on a line 30 miles north of the former Red Korean capital, Pyongyang.

Back to 38th Is Goal

Willoughby said prisoners indicated the Chinese, possibly under the command of Red Gen. Lin Piao, were trying to drive the allies back below the 38th parallel—100 air miles south of the present northwest line.

At advanced Eighth Army headquarters in the northwest sector where 200,000 Chinese are reported on the march, AP Correspondent Don Huth reported an estimated 10,000 Chinese had crossed the winding Chongchon river with heavy material and were moving south.

Another Red force of undetermined size and supported by armor was reported across the river at Kunu, 17 miles inland from the Yellow Sea.

Both Chinese forces were under air attack. Results were not reported by late Friday evening.

Local Police Arrest Two In Sport Shop for Burglary

Hospital Fund Passes $500,000

Remaining Sum, $350,000, to Be Sought in 6 Remaining Days

Reports from volunteer workers, at a dinner meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel last night, pushed The Kingston Hospital's $850,000 building fund over the half-million dollar mark.

Announcement of the $504,707 total standing of the fund to date, was greeted with enthusiasm by the workers attending the fourth report meeting of the public campaign. Team members reported 1,033 new subscriptions amounting to $21,306, bringing the total for this phase of the campaign to 2,375 subscriptions for $68,085.

With the close of the general public campaign scheduled for December 6, the volunteers were urged by Abraham Streifer, public campaign chairman, to "put forth the extra effort to make this the most successful project this community has ever undertaken."

Results 'Encouraging'

Calling the results to date "most encouraging," he continued:

"What has been accomplished this far, is a tribute to your hard work. But we can not, we must not, slow down now. I know we can count on each one of you to make an extra effort, in the next six-days remaning in this public campaign, to see every person whose name is listed on the cards you have selected."

The size of many of the contributions obtained by the workers, he pointed out, indicates public acceptance of the six-payment plan which enables a subscriber to pledge an amount greater than might be met conveniently with cash on hand.

Reports Analyzed

Analysis of reports at last night's meeting showed that the volunteer's organization for the city of Kingston, under the chairmanship of John J. Schwenk, has obtained 949 subscriptions amounting to $34,310, since the public

Bunce and Beatty Taken at Gunpoint Early This Morning by City Police

Officers George Bowers and George Dougherty, of the local police, walked in on an alleged burlary at 588½ Broadway while it was still in progress early today.

They brought to headquarters two young men, four automatic .38 calibre pistols, a .45 and a .38 calibre revolver, two knives, a screw driver, wrench and two packages of ammunition. One of the pistols was a German P-38.

The two, booked on third degree burglary charges are Frank Bunce, 28, of 186 Third avenue and Victor Beatty, 29, of Zena. They were brought before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today and the case was adjourned for examination on Dec. 12. Attorney Charles Saccoman represented them in court. Bail was to be fixed later.

Noise Is Giveaway

Police action, which resulted in the arrest, followed a call from a tenant who resides over Spada's Sport Shop, 588½ Broadway, at 3:03 a. m. The report said noise was "coming from the sports shop," and Lt. William Leonard and Sgt. James Cullum at headquarters dispatched the officers there at once.

The officers, according to the police report, "on approaching the rear of the building found that the rear door had been broken and entry had been made to the shop. They entered with drawn pistols and apprehended Bunce and Beatty."

'Caught in Act'

The two were "in the act of burglarizing" the police report charged, and they allegedly had in their possession the pistols, knives, ammunition and other items. One of the pistols, it was found, was formerly owned by a member of the police department and had been sold some time ago.

Michael Spada, of Glasco, owner of the shop, was notified and asked to come to police headquarters. He later barred up the broken store door pending repairs.

Two Have Records

Records at the sheriff's and district attorney's offices show that Bunce had served six months in the county jail in 1946 for possession of a weapon (a misdemeanor) and that Beatty, only about two weeks ago, had completed a sentence of 118 days in the county jail on a petit larceny charge.

Police Chief Raymond VanBuren said today that Officers Bowers and Dougherty did commendable work in going into the sports shop after the two.

Browder Is Jailed After Failure to Post $1,500 Bail

Judge Refuses Liberty on Personal Bond —Field Enters His Plea in Court

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Earl Browder, longtime No. 1 American Communist, was jailed today after he failed to put up $1,500 bond on a contempt of Congress charge.

Federal Judge Edward M. Curran turned down Browder's plea to remain at liberty on his personal bond.

Browder was indicted earlier this week on the contempt charge for refusing to answer questions before a Senate subcommittee during an investigation of Communist-in-government charges of Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.)

Had Over-Night Bag

Browder appeared in court for arraignment wearing a black suit and carrying an over-night bag, apparently in anticipation of going to jail.

Judge Curran asked Browder whether he had an attorney and he said he didn't. Next he was asked whether he had any money to employ an attorney and he said "no."

Asked whether he wanted the services of court-appointed counsel, Browder said he wished to serve as his own attorney.

Browder fenced with Judge Curran over entering a plea to the contempt charge. The ex-Communist chief contended the indictment was "rather puzzling" and "defective."

Judge Curran reminded him that he was in court today to enter his plea—guilty or not guilty.

"You do not consider the validity of the indictment?" Browder asked.

"Not at this time," the judge replied.

Would Attack Validity

Browder insisted he wanted to attack the validity of the indictment and Judge Curran finally gave him until Dec. 26 to do so. Then the question of bond arose.

The judge fixed bail at $1,500, rejected Browder's plea for personal bond and firmly told him: "You will have to stand committed until the bond is made."

Marshals then led Browder to the lockup in the courthouse basement for routine fingerprinting.

Browder had said in advance of his court appearance that he had "no resources or financial organization" and was not "going to assume financial obligations" to obtain bond.

Frederick Vanderbilt Field, New York millionaire indicted along with Browder and Philip J. Jaffee for refusing to answer questions of the Senate Investigating committee, pleaded innocent today.

Jaffee, editor of the defunct magazine Amerasia, is scheduled to enter his plea next Friday.

Theologian Denounces Idea Of Using A-Bomb on Chinese

Cleveland, Dec. 1 (AP)—Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, who keeps the United Nations informed of American Protestant opinion on world affairs, sounded a blunt "No" last night to suggest the atom bomb should be dropped on Communist China.

The Philadelphia theologian, who has strong influence on American Protestant opinion of world affairs, made the assertion in a speech to the General Assembly of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States at Cleveland's colorfully draped public auditorium.

"Confronted by imminent danger," said Dr. Nolde, "people are disposed to cast reason and judgment to the wind. In alarming proportions, there is for example the demand that we should now drop atomic bombs on Communist China and promptly invade Manchuria.

"I unhesitatingly express my personal opinion that these are the very things which we should not at this moment do.

"In the first place, until all other means have been explored and found impossible, the dropping of atomic bombs would not be morally justifiable. In the second place, we would be veritably playing into the hands of those who want to pin upon us the tangible responsibility for starting a world war."

Dr. Nolde, who is director of the Commission of the Churches on International Affairs of the World Council of Churches and the International Missionary Council, added:

"Be it noted that in saying this, I speak in the light of conditions as they exist today and allow that the conditions of tomorrow may be different."

Earlier this week, a commission of scholars of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in

Was Fine at Start

Then Youngsters Belabor Santa, Who Becomes Snowball Target

Pekin, Ill., Dec. 1 (AP)—Santa Claus came to town yesterday and was snowballed out of a parade by a group of teen-age youngsters.

Santa, dressed in a red suit and riding in a red jeep, was the chief feature of a pre-Christmas parade in this central Illinois community of about 20,000 population.

It was a fine parade when it started—decorated floats, a miniature circus and bands, and Santa Claus riding near the end. He had smiled and waved to the crowds which lined the streets to watch the parade.

But some 40 youngsters of about junior high school age started firing snowballs at some other pupils who were in the parade. Then Santa became the main target.

Specific gifts listed in the will total more than $100,000, most of which was bequeathed to health and educational institutions.

The last will and testament, which has been filed for probate with citations returnable December 26, lists the following local organizations among the recipients of specified gifts:

First Dutch Reformed Church of Kingston, $5,000.

Ulster County Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis, an affiliate of the American Heart Association (incorporate name of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association), $5,000.

City of Kingston Laboratory, $5,000.

Y., now maintained by said corporation, said sum or such part thereof as may be requisite, may in the discretion of the Board of Trustees of such corporation be used to endow a room therein in memory of Jacob C. R. Peabody and Elsa Mason Lord Peabody."

The sums left the Convent of St. Anne, the First Dutch Reformed Church, the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association and the City of Kingston Laboratory were left "to be added to its respective endowment fund and to be designated as having been given in memory of Jacob C. R. Peabody and Elsa Mason Lord Peabody."

The sum of $1,000 left to the Kingston City Library was likewise given "to be added to its endowment fund and to be designated as having been given in memory of Jacob C. R. Peabody and Elsa Mason Lord Peabody.

Major shares of the estate were bequeathed in equal parts to Massachusetts General Hospital (Phillips House) of Boston; Groton School of Groton, Mass., and St. Mark's Academy of Southborough, Mass. Each of these institutions received $10,000 as a gift and bequest and were named to share in equal parts of "all the rest, residue and remainder of my property and estate, both real and personal."

Other gifts listed in the will include the following:

American National Red Cross, Washington, D. C., $5,000.

To William J. Peabody and Polly de Mun, grandchildren of her deceased husband, Mrs. Peabody bequeathed the sum of $5,000. The will mentions that no further provision was made for the grandchildren because on the death of her husband they received as remainder of a family trust substantial sums of money, and would, upon Mrs. Peabody's death receive other substantial sums as remainder of four trusts appointed by the husband's will for her benefit during her lifetime.

A sum of $500 was left to Earl Kimball of Salem, Mass.

Frances Gray of 169 Main street was named sole executrix of the last will and testament. George F. Kaufman of Saugerties was attorney in drawing the will, which was signed August 30, 1950, in his presence and in the presence of Frances M. O'Dea of Saugerties.

Mrs. Peabody, a resident of Kingston for 60 years, was the widow of Col. Jacob C. R. Peabody, a veteran of the Spanish American War and World War 1. He was lineal descendant of three well-known families whose name figured prominently in early colonization of Boston and Salem, Mass.

Two other provisions of the will include a grant of $500 to the Wiltwyck Rural Cemetery Association of Kingston for the perpetual care and maintenance of the family burial plot of her deceased foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. William U. Mason, and for keeping plants or flowers upon the graves in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

The other provision, contained in a codicil bequeaths $5,000 to Naumkeag Trust Company of Salem in trust, the income to be used for perpetual care and maintenance of the Peabody family burial plot and for keeping plants and flowers upon the graves in Harmony Grove Cemetery at Salem, Mass.

Frances Gray, executrix, was authorized and empowered to sell and convey any part of the real property. The will states that in effecting the sale of the residence at 171 Main street, the executrix "carry out my wishes verbally stated by me to her." The will also provides that all her jewelry and household goods, furniture, furnishings and equipment of every kind at the home of 171 Main street, be sold but specifically directs that "no part of same shall under any circumstances be sold at public auction or be offered for sale at my residence."

SHANDAKEN

Additional calamity came to the town of Shandaken and Pine Hill village yesterday afternoon.

While workmen were repairing the state highway bridge at the junction of Route 28 and the station road in Pine Hill, the eight-inch water main from the reservoir to the village was broken and the entire village served by the village water supply was without water. Repairs were under way most of the night and it was expected repairs would be completed by this evening. One break had been repaired when a second break was discovered.

Thursday afternoon the steel span bridge leading to the Rip Van Winkle Golf Club at Shandaken, weakened by damage to the abutments, dropped from one corner of the abutment and was closed to traffic. The abutment was badly damaged by flood waters Saturday. County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran was at the scene today and later reported an effort would be made to salvage the bridge and hoist it back in position. The bridge is approximately 60 feet long and is a town bridge. However, the county is assisting in the emergency to get the structure back in position.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 1 (AP) — The stock market plodded ahead today for gains running to around $1 a share.

The advance was labored but there was no question of the market's direction. Numerous stocks that started out unchanged or slightly lower eventually drifted into the plus column.

Trading volume was not much better than routine although there was a mild tendency for turnover to expand as prices edged ahead.

The rise was a resumption of the rally that started yesterday morning but faded out during the afternoon. Earlier in the week prices were pounded down in the wake of ominous news regarding Korea.

Word from Washington that President Truman would ask Congress for another $18,000,000,000 or so in order to speed up rearmament program had no immediate effect.

Material Is Asked

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—The New York State Farm Bureau Federation is asking steel companies to supply enough material for farmers to repair damages in last week-end's storm. E. S. Foster, general secretary, said yesterday that steel roofing especially was needed for farm buildings damaged by the big wind. Foster said many steel companies had pledged cooperation, provided dealers indicated their needs.

Willoughby Says

Rhee advocated using the A-bomb in North Korea. He suggested in an interview at Seoul that the Allies should use "old-style" atomic bombs such as the ones that pulverized Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan, just before World War 2 ended.

Rhee Favors Old Bombs

Rhee said he had been considering an appeal to Mr. Truman to use the A-bomb and added:

"Old style atomic bombs could be dropped in North Korea after warning the people to evacuate south. We know even the bomb used at Hiroshima (and Nagasaki) could have been more devastating so old-style bombs would be enough to use here.

Willoughby told war reporters he did not care to discuss use of the A-bomb.

He said the allied position along the icy Chongchon river in the northwest is being stabilized and added that when the time comes the United Nations forces would strike back against the Reds.

It was the first time since the outbreak of the Korean war that Willoughby himself conducted a briefing of correspondents.

Always Knew Size

He said Allied intelligence always knew the size of Chinese elements across the Yalu river boundary of Red Manchuria and Korea and that the numbers of armies and divisions were known as well as their commanders and much of their history.

"An old ruse," he said, describing the release of 27 wounded Americans the day before Thanksgiving.

"It was designed to make us think they were withdrawing after having made a token gesture."

Asked about the ability of the Chinese to kick the U. S. Eighth Army and the 10th Corps on the east coast out of Korea, Willoughby commented:

"You don't seriously think that American and British regulars are going to quietly sit back and let themselves be pushed anywhere, do you?"

Only Way to Determine

He said the U.N. offensive of last week was the only way to determine Chinese intentions. Until then, he added, the allies had hoped that Chinese intervention in Korea was a gesture.

On the northwest front, the retreating Eighth Army pulled into a tight line 40 miles south of its advanced positions and 30 miles north of Pyongyang.

The Eighth Army had beat out Chinese attempts to trap it against the Yellow Sea. Allied divisions spearing toward the Red Manchurian border 40 to 60 miles northward had retreated to the south bank of the Chongchon river.

On the vulnerable right flank—where three South Korean divisions folded under the first heat of the Chinese assault—the British and Turks — each in brigade strength—and the U. S. First Cavalry Division stood firm.

The comparative ground lull on the northwest front continued. An Eighth Army spokesman said Friday most of the activity was in the air, with allied planes inflicting an estimated 1,300 Red casualties.

It was the heaviest aerial assault since September. Nearly 700 sorties were flown.

The fighters and bombers rained explosives on Chinese attacking U. S. Marines and Seventh Division infantrymen around the Changjin reservoir in northeast Korea.

The Eighth Army spokesman said that in the northwest an unconfirmed report of Reds crossing the Chongchon river north of Kunu is being checked. Kunu is 15 miles east of the main allied supply and retreat point of Anju.

The spokesman said the U. S. Second Division, with its units intact, was taking positions on a new defense line south of the Chongchon. He acknowledged it suffered heavy casualties.

All other American units in the northwest were south of the Chongchon.

In the northeast, a U. S. Seventh Division pushed up from the east coastal city of Hamhung in an effort to wipe out Red roadblocks cutting the marines off from supplies.

The relieving regiment ran into heavy opposition about 10 miles south of the frozen Changjin reservoir.

Court Takes Recess

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—The Court of Appeals recessed today until Jan. 2. The term started Nov. 13.

Big Three Parley Might Be Held

London, Dec. 1 (AP)—A big three parley of heads of state on the worsening Asiatic crisis became a possibility today.

Prime Minister Attlee made last minute preparations to fly to Washington Sunday to see President Truman. In Paris a foreign office spokesman said French Premier Rene Pleven may join the talks.

The Paris spokesman said he understood the French premier might hurry to Washington if the National Assembly gave him a sufficient vote of confidence later tonight. Whether Pleven remained in office depended on the vote.

The British foreign office announced that Attlee will see Pleven and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman tomorrow before leaving for Washington.

Marine Pilots . . .

Patterson said was "three-fourths frozen over." He said:

"I reckon I saw between 400 and 500 of those Chinese. They were all over the place. They looked like they were operating independently of each other."

Patterson poked a finger into a jagged hole in his plane's left horizontal stabilizer and said, "Termites." The hole was made by a Chinese bullet.

Lt. Robert J. O'Shea, 25, 67 Ashford street, Brooklyn, flew a light reconnaissance plane over marine positions on the west side of the lake.

He said elements of the Seventh Marine Regiment of the First Marine Division were fighting their way south toward Hagaru. He said:

"They're having to fight their way back. But they will make it all right to Hagaru."

He said the Chinese "are making it tough for them. They're sniping from good positions all along the road."

Committee Protests

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—A nurses' committee is up in arms against hospitals that require nurses to do office and house work. Miss Clare M. Casey of New York city, chairman of the conference committee on the improvement of nursing service, said last night the group had authorized a survey to determine how many hospitals used nurses in non-professional duties.

Natural ice is still "harvested" for private use in northern New Mexico each winter.

Half-Negro Baby Gets Grand Prize

Detroit, Dec. 1 (AP)—Detroit's "grand prize baby" is the son of a Negro father and a white mother.

That's the way the "better baby" contest of the Detroit Junior Board of Commerce came out last night.

Top award went to 29-month-old Lester H. Massengill, whose father is a foundry worker for the Ford Motor Co. and whose mother is a former WAC.

Baby Lester was adjudged the winner at a public ceremony in Convention Hall on a point basis in which the governing factors were "Health, beauty and popularity."

Lester was first in a field of 5,244 baby rivals.

"Health and beauty" ratings were decided from medical records of the contestants and judges' verdicts. "Popularity" was determined from the number of raffle tickets sold by each baby's parents and friends.

Baby Leter's father, Georgia-born George L. Massengill, 32, was modestly proud.

He said he hoped the result could lead to better racial relationships and understanding.

The mother, Claire, 26, joined with him in expressing the hope.

Baby Lester's victory meant a good deal otherwise, too. He won a four-year university scholarship, a round trip flight for himself and parents to Miami, and many incidental awards including household articles and a bicycle.

The Junior Board of Commerce is using the bulk of proceeds from the contest to promote a civic program.

Conviction Upheld

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—The Court of Appeals upheld today the convictions of two New York city Kosher meat dealers for selling on Sunday. Sam Friedman and Sam Praska were fined $10 each on June 22, 1949, on charges of violating Section 2147 of the penal law, a misdemeanor. They contended that Saturday was their holy day, and that they did not perform any labor or engage in any business on that day. In an unanimous opinion, the state's highest tribunal held that the Legislature was within its power in prohibiting certain sales on Sunday, and that "the defendants' remedy lies with the Legislature."

Mrs. Peabody Gives $28,000 in Will to Seven Institutions

Seven local institutions and organizations were bequeathed a total of $28,000 by the will of the late Mrs. Elsa Mason Lord Peabody of 171 Main street, who died November 5. Specific gifts listed in the will total more than $100,000, most of which was bequeathed to health and educational institutions.

The last will and testament, which has been filed for probate with citations returnable December 26, lists the following local organizations among the recipients of specified gifts:

Kingston Hospital, $5,000.

Our Lady of Victory Sanitarium (Benedictine Hospital), $5,000.

First Dutch Reformed Church of Kingston, $5,000.

Ulster County Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis, an affiliate of the American Heart Association (incorporate name of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association), $5,000.

City of Kingston Laboratory, $5,000.

Convent of St. Anne, Kingston, $2,000.

Kingston City Library, $1,000 and "all the books contained in my residence at the time of my death."

The sums left to the two local hospitals are contained in provisions of the will which includes the provision that "in the event of the erection at any future time of an addition to the hospital at Kingston, N. Y., now maintained by said corporation, said sum or such part thereof as may be requisite, may in the discretion of the Board of Trustees of such corporation be used to endow a room therein in memory of Jacob C. R. Peabody and Elsa Mason Lord Peabody."

The sums left the Convent of St. Anne, the First Dutch Reformed Church, the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association and the City of Kingston Laboratory were left "to be added to its respective endowment fund and to be designated as having been given in memory of Jacob C. R. Peabody and Elsa Mason Lord Peabody."

The sum of $1,000 left to the Kingston City Library was likewise given "to be added to its endowment fund and to be designated as having been given in memory of Jacob C. R. Peabody and Elsa Mason Lord Peabody.

Major shares of the estate were bequeathed in equal parts to Massachusetts General Hospital (Phillips House) of Boston; Groton School of Groton, Mass., and St. Mark's Academy of Southborough, Mass. Each of these institutions received $10,000 as a gift and bequest and were named to share in equal parts of "all the rest, residue and remainder of my property and estate, both real and personal."

Other gifts listed in the will include the following:

American National Red Cross, Washington, D. C., $5,000.

Peabody Museum, Salem, Mass., $5,000.

American Cancer Society, $5,000.

Home for Cripples, West Haverstraw, $1,000.

Individuals Named

Several local individuals were named as beneficiaries. They include Helen B. Walsh, 20 North Wilbur avenue, $500; Frances Gray, 169 Main street, $800; Jessie M. Oughletree, 29 Van Buren street, $500, and Marjorie E. McNelis, 173 Main street, $500.

Also, to John Blatter of West Hurley, "in event he survives me and shall be in my employ at the time of my death," $800.

To William J. Peabody and Polly de Mun, grandchildren of her deceased husband, Mrs. Peabody bequeathed the sum of $5,000. The will mentions that no further provision was made for the grandchildren because on the death of her husband they received as remainder of a family trust substantial sums of money, and would, upon Mrs. Peabody's death receive other substantial sums as remainder of four trusts appointed by the husband's will for her benefit during her lifetime.

A sum of $500 was left to Earl Kimball of Salem, Mass.

Frances Gray of 169 Main street was named sole executrix of the last will and testament. George F. Kaufman of Saugerties was attorney in drawing the will, which was signed August 30, 1950, in his presence and in the presence of Frances M. O'Dea of Saugerties.

Mrs. Peabody, a resident of Kingston for 60 years, was the widow of Col. Jacob C. R. Peabody, a veteran of the Spanish American War and World War 1. He was lineal descendant of three well-known families whose name figured prominently in early colonization of Boston and Salem, Mass.

Two other provisions of the will include a grant of $500 to the Wiltwyck Rural Cemetery Association of Kingston for the perpetual care and maintenance of the family burial plot of her deceased foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. William U. Mason, and for keeping plants or flowers upon the graves in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

The other provision, contained in a codicil bequeaths $5,000 to Naumkeag Trust Company of Salem in trust, the income to be used for perpetual care and maintenance of the Peabody family burial plot and for keeping plants and flowers upon the graves in Harmony Grove Cemetery at Salem, Mass.

Frances Gray, executrix, was authorized and empowered to sell and convey any part of the real property. The will states that in effecting the sale of the residence at 171 Main street, the executrix "carry out my wishes verbally stated by me to her." The will also provides that all her jewelry and household goods, furniture, furnishings and equipment of every kind at the home of 171 Main street, be sold but specifically directs that "no part of same shall under any circumstances be sold at public auction or be offered for sale at my residence."

SHANDAKEN

Additional calamity came to the town of Shandaken and Pine Hill village yesterday afternoon.

While workmen were repairing the state highway bridge at the junction of Route 28 and the station road in Pine Hill, the eight-inch water main from the reservoir to the village was broken and the entire village served by the village water supply was without water. Repairs were under way most of the night and it was expected repairs would be completed by this evening. One break had been repaired when a second break was discovered.

Thursday afternoon the steel span bridge leading to the Rip Van Winkle Golf Club at Shandaken, weakened by damage to the abutments, dropped from one corner of the abutment and was closed to traffic. The abutment was badly damaged by flood waters Saturday. County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran was at the scene today and later reported an effort would be made to salvage the bridge and hoist it back in position. The bridge is approximately 60 feet long and is a town bridge. However, the county is assisting in the emergency to get the structure back in position.

May Ban Red Sheet

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Executies of a city-wide newsdealers association have proposed banning The Daily Worker, Communist Party newspaper, from New York newsstands. William Richter, president of the Newsdealers Association of Greater New York, said the paper should not be sold, because "it represents a party which is subversive according to government edict."

New Delhi, India, Dec. 1 (AP)—Unconfirmed reports from the border town of Kalimpong said today Chinese Communist forces based on Sinkiang providence are savagely fighting their way across western Tibet. Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 1 (AP) — The stock market plodded ahead today for gains running to around $1 a share.

The advance was labored but there was no question of the market's direction. Numerous stocks that started out unchanged or slightly lower eventually drifted into the plus column.

Trading volume was not much better than routine although there was a mild tendency for turnover to expand as prices edged ahead.

The rise was a resumption of the rally that started yesterday morning but faded out during the afternoon. Earlier in the week prices were pounded down in the wake of ominous news regarding Korea.

Word from Washington that President Truman would ask Congress for another $18,000,000,000 or so in order to speed up rearmament program had no immediate effect.

Material Is Asked

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—The New York State Farm Bureau Federation is asking steel companies to supply enough material for farmers to repair damages in last week-end's storm. E. S. Foster, general secretary, said yesterday that steel roofing especially was needed for farm buildings damaged by the big wind. Foster said many steel companies had pledged cooperation, provided dealers indicated their needs.

Willoughby Says

Rhee advocated using the A-bomb in North Korea. He suggested in an interview at Seoul that the Allies should use "old-style" atomic bombs such as the ones that pulverized Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan, just before World War 2 ended.

Rhee Favors Old Bombs

Rhee said he had been considering an appeal to Mr. Truman to use the A-bomb and added:

"Old style atomic bombs could be dropped in North Korea after warning the people to evacuate south. We know even the bomb used at Hiroshima (and Nagasaki) could have been more devastating so old-style bombs would be enough to use here.

Willoughby told war reporters he did not care to discuss use of the A-bomb.

He said the allied position along the icy Chongchon river in the northwest is being stabilized and added that when the time comes the United Nations forces would strike back against the Reds.

It was the first time since the outbreak of the Korean war that Willoughby himself conducted a briefing of correspondents.

Always Knew Size

He said Allied intelligence always knew the size of Chinese elements across the Yalu river boundary of Red Manchuria and Korea and that the numbers of armies and divisions were known as well as their commanders and much of their history.

"An old ruse," he said, describing the release of 27 wounded Americans the day before Thanksgiving.

"It was designed to make us think they were withdrawing after having made a token gesture."

Asked about the ability of the Chinese to kick the U. S. Eighth Army and the 10th Corps on the east coast out of Korea, Willoughby commented:

"You don't seriously think that American and British regulars are going to quietly sit back and let themselves be pushed anywhere, do you?"

Only Way to Determine

He said the U.N. offensive of last week was the only way to determine Chinese intentions. Until then, he added, the allies had hoped that Chinese intervention in Korea was a gesture.

On the northwest front, the retreating Eighth Army pulled into a tight line 40 miles south of its advanced positions and 30 miles north of Pyongyang.

The Eighth Army had beat out Chinese attempts to trap it against the Yellow Sea. Allied divisions spearing toward the Red Manchurian border 40 to 60 miles northward had retreated to the south bank of the Chongchon river.

On the vulnerable right flank—where three South Korean divisions folded under the first heat of the Chinese assault—the British and Turks — each in brigade strength—and the U. S. First Cavalry Division stood firm.

The comparative ground lull on the northwest front continued. An Eighth Army spokesman said Friday most of the activity was in the air, with allied planes inflicting an estimated 1,300 Red casualties.

It was the heaviest aerial assault since September. Nearly 700 sorties were flown.

The fighters and bombers rained explosives on Chinese attacking U. S. Marines and Seventh Division infantrymen around the Changjin reservoir in northeast Korea.

The Eighth Army spokesman said that in the northwest an unconfirmed report of Reds crossing the Chongchon river north of Kunu is being checked. Kunu is 15 miles east of the main allied supply and retreat point of Anju.

The spokesman said the U. S. Second Division, with its units intact, was taking positions on a new defense line south of the Chongchon. He acknowledged it suffered heavy casualties.

All other American units in the northwest were south of the Chongchon.

In the northeast, a U. S. Seventh Division pushed up from the east coastal city of Hamhung in an effort to wipe out Red roadblocks cutting the marines off from supplies.

The relieving regiment ran into heavy opposition about 10 miles south of the frozen Changjin reservoir.

Court Takes Recess

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—The Court of Appeals recessed today until Jan. 2. The term started Nov. 13.

Big Three Parley Might Be Held

London, Dec. 1 (AP)—A big three parley of heads of state on the worsening Asiatic crisis became a possibility today.

Prime Minister Attlee made last minute preparations to fly to Washington Sunday to see President Truman. In Paris a foreign office spokesman said French Premier Rene Pleven may join the talks.

The Paris spokesman said he understood the French premier might hurry to Washington if the National Assembly gave him a sufficient vote of confidence later tonight. Whether Pleven remained in office depended on the vote.

The British foreign office announced that Attlee will see Pleven and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman tomorrow before leaving for Washington.

Marine Pilots . . .

Patterson said was "three-fourths frozen over." He said:

"I reckon I saw between 400 and 500 of those Chinese. They were all over the place. They looked like they were operating independently of each other."

Patterson poked a finger into a jagged hole in his plane's left horizontal stabilizer and said, "Termites." The hole was made by a Chinese bullet.

Lt. Robert J. O'Shea, 25, 67 Ashford street, Brooklyn, flew a light reconnaissance plane over marine positions on the west side of the lake.

He said elements of the Seventh Marine Regiment of the First Marine Division were fighting their way south toward Hagaru. He said:

"They're having to fight their way back. But they will make it all right to Hagaru."

He said the Chinese "are making it tough for them. They're sniping from good positions all along the road."

Committee Protests

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—A nurses' committee is up in arms against hospitals that require nurses to do office and house work. Miss Clare M. Casey of New York city, chairman of the conference committee on the improvement of nursing service, said last night the group had authorized a survey to determine how many hospitals used nurses in non-professional duties.

Natural ice is still "harvested" for private use in northern New Mexico each winter.

Half-Negro Baby Gets Grand Prize

Detroit, Dec. 1 (AP)—Detroit's "grand prize baby" is the son of a Negro father and a white mother.

That's the way the "better baby" contest of the Detroit Junior Board of Commerce came out last night.

Top award went to 29-month-old Lester H. Massengill, whose father is a foundry worker for the Ford Motor Co. and whose mother is a former WAC.

Baby Lester was adjudged the winner at a public ceremony in Convention Hall on a point basis in which the governing factors were "Health, beauty and popularity."

Lester was first in a field of 5,244 baby rivals.

"Health and beauty" ratings were decided from medical records of the contestants and judges' verdicts. "Popularity" was determined from the number of raffle tickets sold by each baby's parents and friends.

Baby Leter's father, Georgia-born George L. Massengill, 32, was modestly proud.

He said he hoped the result could lead to better racial relationships and understanding.

The mother, Claire, 26, joined with him in expressing the hope.

Baby Lester's victory meant a good deal otherwise, too. He won a four-year university scholarship, a round trip flight for himself and parents to Miami, and many incidental awards including household articles and a bicycle.

The Junior Board of Commerce is using the bulk of proceeds from the contest to promote a civic program.

Conviction Upheld

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—The Court of Appeals upheld today the convictions of two New York city Kosher meat dealers for selling on Sunday. Sam Friedman and Sam Praska were fined $10 each on June 22, 1949, on charges of violating Section 2147 of the penal law, a misdemeanor. They contended that Saturday was their holy day, and that they did not perform any labor or engage in any business on that day. In an unanimous opinion, the state's highest tribunal held that the Legislature was within its power in prohibiting certain sales on Sunday, and that "the defendants' remedy lies with the Legislature."

Landlords Can Apply for Raises

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Individual New York state landlords claiming "hardship" under the present rent freeze can apply today for authority to raise rents.

An interim ruling yesterday by the temporary State Housing Rent Commission partially lifts the no-rent-boost order clamped on last March 1.

The revised rent control regulations were filed with the secretary of state at Albany as required by the rent control law passed by the state Legislature in its last session.

In announcing the new interim regulations, state rent commissioner Joseph D. McGoldrick said he could not give immediately a close estimate of the number of properties or tenants which will be affected.

On Following Basis

Landlords may seek permission to raise rents on the following three-point basis:

1. "Where operating costs exceed rental income."

Landlords applying for rent boosts on this basis, McGoldrick said, can not include depreciation, obsolescence and reserves in their operating costs. They can claim increased costs in real estate taxes, wages and, to a limited extent, interest paid on mortgages.

2. "Where severe hardship results from maximum rent substantially lower or higher than comparable rents."

Under this regulation, McGoldrick said, relief would be provided "only in unique or peculiar cases where abnormal factors caused rents substantially different from those prevailing for similar accommodations."

Because of Hardship

3. "Because of severe hardship arising from gross inequities."

This regulation would take into consideration cases in which landlords had made improvements which "have resulted in an increase in the rental value of the accommodation," McGoldrick said.

The commissioner added that no adjustments would be retroactive.

The new interim regulations represent the second stage provided for under the law, and will remain in effect until the Legislature adopts a permanent rent control plan.

The first stage was the rent freeze last spring. The law, which became effective last May 1, froze rents until March 1, 1951, at levels paid on March 1, 1950, except in New York city where they were frozen at the March 1, 1949, level.

The third and final stage will be a commission rent control plan presentation to the Legislature of Jan. 25.

Must Share Care

Los Angeles, Dec. 1 (AP)—The unwed parents of 16-month-old Lindsay Mae Shane can't agree to live with each other, but they're going to take turns daily taking care of baby. Superior Judge Mildred Lillie yesterday worked out this custody sharing plan for Gerald D. Shane, 25, actor-salesman, and Jeanette Nowitzke, 21, drug store clerk: The father will have the child from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., while the mother works; she is to have custody from 6 p. m. to 8 a. m. But the judge failed in her attempt to get the couple to marry.

OUR MATERIALISM

Travelers returning from the East and Near East often report that the peoples of those lands have inaccurate and uncomplimentary ideas about the nature of the American people. The most frequently heard declaration is that we are hopelessly materialistic, interested only in comfort, machinery and wealth, and lacking in the finer culture of civilization. This impression, it is pointed out, does us no good in the contest for the sympathies of the Asiatic nations.

It is our own fault that this misconception is so widely held. When we compare America with other nations, we usually do so on the basis of material achievements. When we offer help and advice to other peoples, it is most often done with a view toward improving their material standard of living. An exception in purpose is the work of religious missions, but even the missionaries have seldom been able to resist the urge to improve the physical lot of the people among whom they work. And when taken to task for our interest in material things we are prone to admit apologetically that it is so, that we are materialists and not the equals of Orientals in the strange thing called culture.

But there is an essential and usually overlooked difference in thinking. The Eastern culture so often admired is that of the scholars, the intellectuals. The material comforts of American life and ways are those of the whole people, not just of the top layer. We have a highly developed culture, too, and we can be proud of it. And we should not forget to point out that a lack of interest in the material well-being of the mass of the people is not necessarily a mark of high culture.

A proposal to reserve some television channels for educational and public service use has been brought forth by a Joint Committee on Educational Television. Its idea is that one channel in each large city and in each "college center" should be so reserved. Stations would be licensed to use these channels only for education and public service, and not for any commercial programs.

GRADES AND ABILITY

The relative futility of judging a student's future achievements by the grades he attained in high school or college was pointed out by Dr. Charles W. Cole, president of Amherst College, at a recent meeting of the College Entrance Examination Board. He asserted that some persons reach their peak performance in secondary school, others in college and graduate school, and still others after school.

Some individuals who make major achievements in maturity received barely passing grades in college, according to the board's figures. The questions thus brought up include the difficulty of distinguishing between the student with great future potentialities and one whose abilities are already fully apparent.

The time is past when it was supposed that a young person's fitness for college or for life could be determined easily by scholastic tests. Modern psychological knowledge shows that it is necessary to delve deeper. It is a vastly more complicated performance to probe into the secrets of personality in order to detect that strong hidden drive for accomplishment, or the lack of it.

Stalin is running for re-election as deputy to the Moscow Regional Soviet. This provides a chance for forecasters who guessed wrong on our own results to redeem themselves. They can safely predict that Stalin will win.

RED PUBLICITY

In Saskatchewan the Prince Albert branch of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada has considered the amount of notice the Communists attain in the press, and has come to the conclusion that the Reds get too much publicity.

We would be the first to admit that the Reds get far more publicity than is justified by the worth of their ideas. But there is considerable evidence to indicate that we are involved in such deep and complicated troubles with them now chiefly because we did not give enough attention to Communist doings in the past. If we had paid them more heed before, we might not have to give them so much now.

THE ROADS TO INDIA

Rabindranath Tagore said: "India is many countries packed into one geographical receptacle." Some 147 distinct languages are spoken among its many peoples. In the movement of races from desert and mountain to rivers and valleys, from a hard life to a warmer climate and plentiful foods and fibers, India has often been conquered.

In 326 B.C., Alexander the Great, as he is called, a Macedonian conqueror, crossing through Bactria over the Hindu Kush mountains, invaded the Punjab and crossed the Indus river. Wherever Alexander went, he planted Greek cities and established Greek culture, which in this period had to struggle against the resplendent Persian culture then prevailing in these areas.

Alexander's army encountered fierce enemies throughout his Indian conquests, brave and good soldiers. Yet it was possible for his army to find a path through, in spite of mountain, desert and heat.

A conquering race, little known in these times, were the Scythians, a Nomadic people who followed the grass, spreading probably from what is now called Turkestan and Mongolia into Persia and thence to the region that lies between the Don and the Carpathians in present-day Russia.

Always the pressure seems to be from the north southward and thus a Scythian people, the Sakas, who were being pressed by the Sinic Yue-chi in the Jaxartes region, pressed upon the Greeks in Bactria. They conquered the Punjab in 135 B.C. and set up a dynasty in much the same lands that Alexander the Great had held in northern India.

I am omitting other movements across this same route—a route which is today at the disposal of Soviet Russia. To the Indus from the north seems often to have been an open road for any aggressive people.

For again in the Fifth Century, a people known as the White Huns or Epthalites, arising in the same Turkestan-Mongolian grasslands, occupied Bactria and moved into the Punjab, and in time controlled a vast area in India.

So in the 10th Century, the Turks brought Islam to northern India, conquering much of the land—and laying the foundation for modern Pakistan.

Again in the 14th Century, Genghis Khan's Mongols, developing out of the Turkestan-Mongolian region, spread from the Pacific to Moscow, and Tamerlane, already the conqueror of Persia, Mesopotamia and Afghanistan (Bactria), crossed the Hindu Kush to the Indus, into the Punjab and established what became the great Mogul empire with which the British had to deal when they set out to conquer India.

Other routes into India, now being employed by Soviet China, have an interesting history. The Manchu emperor of China, K'ang Hsi, interested himself in the internal problems of Tibet, which was then being attacked by the Eleuths, a western Mongolian people. K'ang Hsi supported the Dalai Lama and managed in 1720 to establish a suzerainty over Tibet by supporting and protecting a favorite.

In the reign of Ch'ien Lung, one of the greatest emperors of China, Tibet was invaded by the Chinese, who established temporal control over the Dalai Lama.

In this same reign, the Chinese invaded Burma, without too much success, but they did move into Nepal, which is separated from Tibet by the supposedly impassable Himalayas. Assam and Bhutan came under Chinese influence. China became the suzerain of Nepal—a problem which will now face the world because Soviet China is already active in Nepal and other areas in this region.

The best and easiest route of conquest of India is, of course, by sea. In 1498, Vasco Da Gama reached Malabar, having rounded the Cape of Good Hope. Henceforth, not the tribes out of the Turkestan-Mongolian grasslands and deserts nor the Persian and Turkish peoples, but western Europeans made their way to India. The British and French vied with the Portuguese for control of this country.

India suddenly found herself involved in the European system of war, the war of the Austrian succession reaching India in the struggle between England and France for world dominion.

Without regard to the local population and truly great civilizations, Clive and Dupleix fought to carve out empires. The British predominated and held India, in one form or another, until 1947.

Mountains can be scaled; rivers can be crossed; peoples can be subdued, if the national will to live, to grow, to possess exists, and when against that will nothing is pitted but uncertainty.

GROWING OLD

In these days, since industry considers a man or woman of no further use to the organization after the age of 55 to 60, and we learn from research workers that the average life span has increased from age of 47 (in 1900) to 66 (in 1950), we wonder what is to become of elderly people physically, mentally and emotionally. There are more elderly men and women in the world today than any other single age class.

Because of this a new specialty has arisen in medicine called geriatrics, the treatment of diseases of old age. Geriatricians point out that an elderly person can develop or be afflicted with practically all the ailments of the middle-aged and young adults, but has less physical and mental energy to withstand these ailments.

Added to the physical ailments common to old age are mental and emotional disturbances. Elderly people find themselves a little slow mentally, their hearing and eyesight are not so good, and they feel tired most of the time.

In Medical Clinics of North America, Drs. Davis A. Boyd, Jr., and Francis J. Braceland, Mayo Clinic, Department of Psychiatry, state: "Everyone is deeply concerned with preservation of his own dignity and sense of worth as a person; this need is a powerful motivating force and accounts for much of the individual's striving and behavior patterns; the elderly are constantly reminded by a host of very real events plus social and family attitudes that they are less important, less esteemed and respected, less loved than once they had been."

If in good condition physically, many elderly men and women are able to face this lack of appreciation and love of family and friends. However, if they begin to develop physical ailments at this time, they are apt to use what are called defensive mechanisms, such as exaggerating the symptoms of the physical ailment, in an attempt to justify their mental and emotional shortcomings.

Treatment for us all to keep us balanced as we grow older is to try to keep well with enough rest and sleep, enough food with an all-round diet, regular exercise such as walking, regular bowel action, and an active interest in others and in our surroundings.

From Here On, and How Far?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—British and French skepticism over General MacArthur and his risking of an all-out war with China has focused attention on some of the friction, long hushed up, between Washington and Tokyo. This friction was one reason for the President's sudden flight to Wake Island.

The President, of course, has never admitted publicly that there was any difficulty with MacArthur. Furthermore, MacArthur has been almost obsequious in conferring with Washington, and only once or twice has he been curt or abrupt. Once, however, on or about October 12, when instructed not to bomb bases on Chinese soil, he sent back a very rough cable loaded with bitterness.

"My troops are being bombed and strafed by planes based on the north side of the Yalu river," is an accurate paraphrase of MacArthur's message. "What do you propose I do about it?"

MacArthur never got an answer to this query.

The problem involved in this and other messages was exactly that which has bothered the British, French and our other U.N. allies— namely, how to win in Korea without dragging China into an all-out war. To have bombed Chinese bases across the Yalu river mean such a war—which was why MacArthur never got an answer to his message.

China Warned In September

First time the question of war with China came up was when the U. S. ambassador in India, Loy Henderson, was advised by Prime Minister Nehru that China would definitely enter the Korean war if U. N. forces crossed the 38th parallel. Nehru's information came from his ambassador in Peiping, Sardar Panniker.

The warning was ignored, however, because the State Department considered Ambassador Panniker a stooge for the Chinese Communists and believed that the message was a bluff. Instead, Ambassador Henderson was instructed to find out through the Indian government what the Chinese intentions were and how we might avoid war with them.

These negotiations produced nothing, but they took time. They also caused Difference No. 1 with MacArthur. For MacArthur was chafing at the bit over failure to receive definite authorization to cross the 38th Parallel.

As a compromise, Washington, on October 1, OK'd the use of South Korean troops only north of the 38th Parallel; and later, on October 4, the U.N. passed a resolution giving the green light to the full use of MacArthur's army.

40-Mile Neutrality Zone

However, the State Department, foreseeing trouble when the U.N. army approached the Yalu river and the big power dams which supply electricity to most of Manchuria, worked out a plan whereby MacArthur was to halt his troops in the mountains of North Korea about 40 miles from the Manchurian border. This was one of the matters agreed upon by MacArthur and Truman during the Wake Island conference.

At Wake Island, incidentally, MacArthur expressed confidence that the Chinese would not attack in North Korea. He said he was thoroughly familiar with Chinese psychology and that they were only bluffing.

About 24 hours after Wake Island, however, small Chinese units did cross into North Korea, but MacArthur refused to believe these reports of Red intervention. And, for about 10 days, MacArthur's assurance to Washington that there was no real Chinese intervention led to a false understanding of the entire Korean picture.

Difference No. 2 arose from this situation. MacArthur believed his own reports so implicitly that he asked Washington's permission to send South Korean troops into the so-called neutrality zone on more or less military police duty, and on the basis that no Red troops of any importance were in the area. Then when the South Koreans got into trouble with the enemy, he asked Washington's permission to send American troops into the neutrality zone to rescue them.

This was how the 40-mile buffer zone agreed upon at Wake Island evaporated. It is always the policy of the joint chiefs of staff to abide by the judgment of the field commander, and in each case they deferred to MacArthur's judgment. In each case, also, MacArthur was careful to ask permission from Washington before he advanced into a restricted area.

As a result, MacArthur permitted light U. S. columns to strike north toward the Manchurian border on October 25. These columns included the 1st Cavalry, 24th Infantry and Marine units. The tactic was to reach the border swiftly in order to permit a quick announcement that the war was over.

Chinese Retaliate

However, these units penerating almost to the Chinese border, became so overextended and were so light in strength, that Chinese Communists, popping out of the hills and crossing the Yalu river, cut them to pieces. This was exactly what the State Department and our French-British allies had feared.

On October 30, MacArthur's spokesman for the first time admitted the presence of Chinese troops in heavy strength. Actually they had been in North Korea for about 10 days, and Washington now interprets MacArthur's sudden statement that three Chinese divisions had invaded North Korea with Soviet tanks, self-propelled guns, bazookas and mine-layers as propaganda to cover up a bad military blunder.

Actually the Chinese troops did not have this heavy Soviet equipment.

Difference No. 3 came at about this time when the State Department proposed to MacArthur that he issue a statement informing the Chinese that U.N. forces did not intend to take the big power dams in the Yalu river. The State Department made this proposal in the belief that the Chinese were chiefly intent on protecting these big reservoirs, and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, interrupted a hunting trip to come back to the Pentagon building and relay the message to MacArthur.

Mac Says 'No'

MacArthur, however, sent back the following curt reply: "Do not concur."

Military men, justifying MacArthur's stand, point out that the State Department proposal should have come sooner, that by that time Chinese troops were already in North Korea. On the other hand, the State Department points out privately, the original 40-mile neutrality zone, which MacArthur disregarded, provided that our troops were to keep away from the Manchurian border and thus avoid friction.

Difference No. 4 in the MacArthur controversy came on Nov. 5 when he issued his scathing blast against the Chinese and sent a message to the United Nations in effect asking that China be branded as an aggressor. This statement, coming two days before the elections, was used by Governor Dewey and other Republicans for a solid 36 hours as a campaign argument that the Truman administration had bungled foreign policy.

At this point Mr. Truman had a hard time holding his temper. Later he figured that the MacArthur statement had lost the Democrats a million or so votes.

And he was equally indignant when MacArthur indicated last week that Chinese opposition had evaporated and that American troops might be home for Christmas. Even at that time all the intelligence information received in the Pentagon building made it clear that such an evacuation was not even remotely possible.

Malayan Railroad Job

Kuala Lumpur (AP)—It's a mighty tough job working on the railway in Malaya. No one knows at what moment he may be blown skyhigh. Communists by day and night emerge from the thick jungle bordering rail lines. They plant mines to blow express passenger and freight trains off the tracks. They burn railway stations and murder workers.

Today in Washington

Formal Recognition of 'State of War' Must Come, Since Actuality Is So Close

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 1 — Formal recognition of the existence of a "state of war" between Communist China and the United Nations cannot be long deferred. All-out war with Communist China seems now merely a matter of days. No action against Russia is contemplated, as no Russian units have entered the North Korean war zone.

If the U.N. fails to act, then it may become necessary for President Truman to go before Congress and request formal recognition of the existence of a "state of war" between the United States and Communist China.

These are merely legal steps to formalize what has actually been going on for several weeks.

It was on November 6 that General MacArthur, as the U.N. commander-in-chief in the Far East, reported formally to the U.N. as follows:

"It is apparent to our fighting forces, and our intelligence agencies have confirmed the fact, that the United Nations are presently in hostile contact with Chinese Communist military units deployed for action against the forces of the united command . . .

"The continued employment of Chinese Communist forces in Korea and the hostile attitude assumed by such forces, either inside or outside Korea, are matters which it is incumbent upon me to bring at once to the attention of the United Nations."

In the interval since November 6—more than three weeks—the U.N., by failing to act, has awarded a distinct military advantage to the Chinese Communists, giving them ample time to group together and send across the Manchurian border upward of 200,000 troops. If this is an example of the slow way the U.N. is going to function in a military crisis, it gives the totalitarian states a time advantage which in an atomic era could mean the difference between survival and destruction.

President Truman's resounding statement yesterday is in itself a warning to the U.N. that prompt action is desired by the American government. He says:

"The Chinese Communist leaders have sent their troops from Manchuria to launch a strong and well-organized attack against the United Nations forces in North Korea."

This simple declaration by the President of the United States now brings publicly to the attention of the U.N. a fact that can no longer be ignored. The troops of the U.N. are under attack. Will the U.N. fight back, as a single nation does when it is invaded? Will authorization for an all-out attack against Communist China be forthcoming? The President anticipates firm action thus:

"The forces of the United Nations have no intention of abandoning their mission in Korea . . .

"If aggression is successful in Korea, we can expect it to spread through Asia and Europe to this hemisphere. We are fighting in Korea for our own national security and survival."

Mr. Truman excuses somewhat the delay between November 6 and today by saying that there had been hope of "discussion and negotiation" but he dismisses this at once by pointing to the character of the statements made by the representatives of Communist China before the U.N. this week. Mr. Truman asks now for immediate passage of the resolution presented by Ambassador Austin at the U.N., urging it to take action "to halt this aggression."

Two important moves have already been taken which inevitably must make an impression on the Communist world:

First, Mr. Truman did not hesitate to answer a question saying use of the atom bomb was under consideration.

Second, he agreed to meet personally with Prime Minister Attlee in Washington to discuss coming steps of cooperation to fulfill the policy announced already with respect to Korea.

As to the military side, it seems reasonable to assume that the immediate attention will be given toward stabilizing the lines of our troops in North Korea. If the Chinese Communists subsequently ignore the demand by the U.N. for withdrawal, such military action as seems to promise the maximum of effectiveness will be ordered. This may result in aid to Chinese guerrillas and factions lined up against the Communists. The full force of American air power and sea power will be exerted in a war that may not come to a climax immediately but only after several months of buildup of Chinese anti-Communist armies wherever they may be recruited.

The sending of any more land armies from the outside to the mainland of China is not likely but the Chinese Communists may find that attacks in the south of China will necessitate the withdrawal of much of their forces now concentrated in Manchuria. For the present, it will be not a "world war," but a limited "local war" in the Far East only.

Zoning Law Hearing

Nov. 30, 1950

Editor, The Freeman:

The purpose of this letter and request for it being published in your paper is to have it reach more readers, regarding the meeting held in the Common Council quarters in our city hall last evening in regards to a zoning law hearing to make Hunter street from Wurts street to Hone street a business section. I listened carefully to both sides and as it went along it seemed to be a get at each others throat affair.

It should have been a common sense business meeting and a suitable and understanding agreement solved. I have been a resident for 17 years in the disputed district and hoped to attend a more business-like session.

I spoke for a few moments in favor of the change to a business district because as a citizen I had that right.

After the hearing ended I was approached by two members of the opposing group and was accused of working for and favoring the party interested in securing a change of zoning laws which would enable them—the Levine Bag Co.,—to build a place for bags and trucks.

I was accused of this charge in a menacing way and was informed that I would have no more friends. I have many friends on both sides of this issue and as to being charged with working for the Levine Co., that's not correct. I am self-employed and have worked for any one, Jewish, German, Polish, Negro, Italian or any one, so as to make an honest living.

I am sure that when and if the building and business permits are granted the project will be satisfactory to all concerned and that the building and its contents will not be injurious to any one at all.

Thanking you, I am,
Yours respectfully,
RODERICK M. BINCH,
44 Abeel street
Kingston, N. Y.

OUR MATERIALISM

Travelers returning from the East and Near East often report that the peoples of those lands have inaccurate and uncomplimentary ideas about the nature of the American people. The most frequently heard declaration is that we are hopelessly materialistic, interested only in comfort, machinery and wealth, and lacking in the finer culture of civilization. This impression, it is pointed out, does us no good in the contest for the sympathies of the Asiatic nations.

It is our own fault that this misconception is so widely held. When we compare America with other nations, we usually do so on the basis of material achievements. When we offer help and advice to other peoples, it is most often done with a view toward improving their material standard of living. An exception in purpose is the work of religious missions, but even the missionaries have seldom been able to resist the urge to improve the physical lot of the people among whom they work. And when taken to task for our interest in material things we are prone to admit apologetically that it is so, that we are materialists and not the equals of Orientals in the strange thing called culture.

But there is an essential and usually overlooked difference in thinking. The Eastern culture so often admired is that of the scholars, the intellectuals. The material comforts of American life and ways are those of the whole people, not just of the top layer. We have a highly developed culture, too, and we can be proud of it. And we should not forget to point out that a lack of interest in the material well-being of the mass of the people is not necessarily a mark of high culture.

A proposal to reserve some television channels for educational and public service use has been brought forth by a Joint Committee on Educational Television. Its idea is that one channel in each large city and in each "college center" should be so reserved. Stations would be licensed to use these channels only for education and public service, and not for any commercial programs.

GRADES AND ABILITY

The relative futility of judging a student's future achievements by the grades he attained in high school or college was pointed out by Dr. Charles W. Cole, president of Amherst College, at a recent meeting of the College Entrance Examination Board. He asserted that some persons reach their peak performance in secondary school, others in college and graduate school, and still others after school.

Some individuals who make major achievements in maturity received barely passing grades in college, according to the board's figures. The questions thus brought up include the difficulty of distinguishing between the student with great future potentialities and one whose abilities are already fully apparent.

The time is past when it was supposed that a young person's fitness for college or for life could be determined easily by scholastic tests. Modern psychological knowledge shows that it is necessary to delve deeper. It is a vastly more complicated performance to probe into the secrets of personality in order to detect that strong hidden drive for accomplishment, or the lack of it.

GROWING OLD

In these days, since industry considers a man or woman of no further use to the organization after the age of 55 to 60, and we learn from research workers that the average life span has increased from age of 47 (in 1900) to 66 (in 1950), we wonder what is to become of elderly people physically, mentally and emotionally. In Medical Clinics of North America, Drs. Davis A. Boyd, Jr., and Francis J. Braceland, Mayo Clinic, Department of Psychiatry, state: "Everyone is deeply concerned with preservation of his own dignity and sense of worth as a person; this need is a powerful motivating force and accounts for much of the individual's striving and behavior patterns; the elderly are constantly reminded by a host of very real events plus social and family attitudes that they are less important, less esteemed and respected, less loved than once they had been."

If in good condition physically, many elderly men and women are able to face this lack of appreciation and love of family and friends. However, if they begin to develop physical ailments at this time, they are apt to use what are called defensive mechanisms, such as exaggerating the symptoms of the physical ailment, in an attempt to justify their mental and emotional shortcomings.

Treatment for us all to keep us balanced as we grow older is to try to keep well with enough rest and sleep, enough food with an all-round diet, regular exercise such as walking, regular bowel action, and an active interest in others and in our surroundings.

From Here On, and How Far?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—British and French skepticism over General MacArthur and his risking of an all-out war with China has focused attention on some of the friction, long hushed up, between Washington and Tokyo. This friction was one reason for the President's sudden flight to Wake Island.

The President, of course, has never admitted publicly that there was any difficulty with MacArthur. Furthermore, MacArthur has been almost obsequious in conferring with Washington, and only once or twice has he been curt or abrupt. Once, however, on or about October 12, when instructed not to bomb bases on Chinese soil, he sent back a very rough cable loaded with bitterness.

"My troops are being bombed and strafed by planes based on the north side of the Yalu river," is an accurate paraphrase of MacArthur's message. "What do you propose I do about it?"

MacArthur never got an answer to this query.

The problem involved in this and other messages was exactly that which has bothered the British, French and our other U.N. allies— namely, how to win in Korea without dragging China into an all-out war. To have bombed Chinese bases across the Yalu river mean such a war—which was why MacArthur never got an answer to his message.

China Warned In September

First time the question of war with China came up was when the U. S. ambassador in India, Loy Henderson, was advised by Prime Minister Nehru that China would definitely enter the Korean war if U. N. forces crossed the 38th parallel. Nehru's information came from his ambassador in Peiping, Sardar Panniker.

The warning was ignored, however, because the State Department considered Ambassador Panniker a stooge for the Chinese Communists and believed that the message was a bluff. Instead, Ambassador Henderson was instructed to find out through the Indian government what the Chinese intentions were and how we might avoid war with them.

These negotiations produced nothing, but they took time. They also caused Difference No. 1 with MacArthur. For MacArthur was chafing at the bit over failure to receive definite authorization to cross the 38th Parallel.

As a compromise, Washington, on October 1, OK'd the use of South Korean troops only north of the 38th Parallel; and later, on October 4, the U.N. passed a resolution giving the green light to the full use of MacArthur's army.

40-Mile Neutrality Zone

However, the State Department, foreseeing trouble when the U.N. army approached the Yalu river and the big power dams which supply electricity to most of Manchuria, worked out a plan whereby MacArthur was to halt his troops in the mountains of North Korea about 40 miles from the Manchurian border. This was one of the matters agreed upon by MacArthur and Truman during the Wake Island conference.

At Wake Island, incidentally, MacArthur expressed confidence that the Chinese would not attack in North Korea. He said he was thoroughly familiar with Chinese psychology and that they were only bluffing.

About 24 hours after Wake Island, however, small Chinese units did cross into North Korea, but MacArthur refused to believe these reports of Red intervention. And, for about 10 days, MacArthur's assurance to Washington that there was no real Chinese intervention led to a false understanding of the entire Korean picture.

Difference No. 2 arose from this situation. MacArthur believed his own reports so implicitly that he asked Washington's permission to send South Korean troops into the so-called neutrality zone on more or less military police duty, and on the basis that no Red troops of any importance were in the area. Then when the South Koreans got into trouble with the enemy, he asked Washington's permission to send American troops into the neutrality zone to rescue them.

This was how the 40-mile buffer zone agreed upon at Wake Island evaporated. It is always the policy of the joint chiefs of staff to abide by the judgment of the field commander, and in each case they deferred to MacArthur's judgment. In each case, also, MacArthur was careful to ask permission from Washington before he advanced into a restricted area.

As a result, MacArthur permitted light U. S. columns to strike north toward the Manchurian border on October 25. These columns included the 1st Cavalry, 24th Infantry and Marine units. The tactic was to reach the border swiftly in order to permit a quick announcement that the war was over.

Chinese Retaliate

However, these units penetrating almost to the Chinese border, became so overextended and were so light in strength, that Chinese Communists, popping out of the hills and crossing the Yalu river, cut them to pieces. This was exactly what the State Department and our French-British allies had feared.

On October 30, MacArthur's spokesman for the first time admitted the presence of Chinese troops in heavy strength. Actually they had been in North Korea for about 10 days, and Washington now interprets MacArthur's sudden statement that three Chinese divisions had invaded North Korea with Soviet tanks, self-propelled guns, bazookas and mine-layers as propaganda to cover up a bad military blunder.

Actually the Chinese troops did not have this heavy Soviet equipment.

Difference No. 3 came at about this time when the State Department proposed to MacArthur that he issue a statement informing the Chinese that U.N. forces did not intend to take the big power dams in the Yalu river. The State Department made this proposal in the belief that the Chinese were chiefly intent on protecting these big reservoirs, and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, interrupted a hunting trip to come back to the Pentagon building and relay the message to MacArthur.

Mac Says 'No'

MacArthur, however, sent back the following curt reply: "Do not concur."

Military men, justifying MacArthur's stand, point out that the State Department proposal should have come sooner, that by that time Chinese troops were already in North Korea. On the other hand, the State Department points out privately, the original 40-mile neutrality zone, which MacArthur disregarded, provided that our troops were to keep away from the Manchurian border and thus avoid friction.

Difference No. 4 in the MacArthur controversy came on Nov. 5 when he issued his scathing blast against the Chinese and sent a message to the United Nations in effect asking that China be branded as an aggressor. This statement, coming two days before the elections, was used by Governor Dewey and other Republicans for a solid 36 hours as a campaign argument that the Truman administration had bungled foreign policy.

At this point Mr. Truman had a hard time holding his temper. Later he figured that the MacArthur statement had lost the Democrats a million or so votes.

And he was equally indignant when MacArthur indicated last week that Chinese opposition had evaporated and that American troops might be home for Christmas. Even at that time all the intelligence information received in the Pentagon building made it clear that such an evacuation was not even remotely possible.

Malayan Railroad Job

Kuala Lumpur (AP)—It's a mighty tough job working on the railway in Malaya. No one knows at what moment he may be blown skyhigh. Communists by day and night emerge from the thick jungle bordering rail lines. They plant mines to blow express passenger and freight trains off the tracks. They burn railway stations and murder workers.

Today in Washington

Formal Recognition of 'State of War' Must Come, Since Actuality Is So Close

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 1 — Formal recognition of the existence of a "state of war" between Communist China and the United Nations cannot be long deferred. All-out war with Communist China seems now merely a matter of days. No action against Russia is contemplated, as no Russian units have entered the North Korean war zone.

If the U.N. fails to act, then it may become necessary for President Truman to go before Congress and request formal recognition of the existence of a "state of war" between the United States and Communist China.

These are merely legal steps to formalize what has actually been going on for several weeks.

It was on November 6 that General MacArthur, as the U.N. commander-in-chief in the Far East, reported formally to the U.N. as follows:

"It is apparent to our fighting forces, and our intelligence agencies have confirmed the fact, that the United Nations are presently in hostile contact with Chinese Communist military units deployed for action against the forces of the united command . . .

"The continued employment of Chinese Communist forces in Korea and the hostile attitude assumed by such forces, either inside or outside Korea, are matters which it is incumbent upon me to bring at once to the attention of the United Nations."

In the interval since November 6—more than three weeks—the U.N., by failing to act, has awarded a distinct military advantage to the Chinese Communists, giving them ample time to group together and send across the Manchurian border upward of 200,000 troops. If this is an example of the slow way the U.N. is going to function in a military crisis, it gives the totalitarian states a time advantage which in an atomic era could mean the difference between survival and destruction.

President Truman's resounding statement yesterday is in itself a warning to the U.N. that prompt action is desired by the American government. He says:

"The Chinese Communist leaders have sent their troops from Manchuria to launch a strong and well-organized attack against the United Nations forces in North Korea."

This simple declaration by the President of the United States now brings publicly to the attention of the U.N. a fact that can no longer be ignored. The troops of the U.N. are under attack. Will the U.N. fight back, as a single nation does when it is invaded? Will authorization for an all-out attack against Communist China be forthcoming? The President anticipates firm action thus:

"The forces of the United Nations have no intention of abandoning their mission in Korea...

"If aggression is successful in Korea, we can expect it to spread through Asia and Europe to this hemisphere. We are fighting in Korea for our own national security and survival."

Mr. Truman excuses somewhat the delay between November 6 and today by saying that there had been hope of "discussion and negotiation" but he dismisses this at once by pointing to the character of the statements made by the representatives of Communist China before the U.N. this week. Mr. Truman asks now for immediate passage of the resolution presented by Ambassador Austin at the U.N., urging it to take action "to halt this aggression."

Two important moves have already been taken which inevitably must make an impression on the Communist world:

First, Mr. Truman did not hesitate to answer a question saying use of the atom bomb was under consideration.

Second, he agreed to meet personally with Prime Minister Attlee in Washington to discuss coming steps of cooperation to fulfill the policy announced already with respect to Korea.

As to the military side, it seems reasonable to assume that the immediate attention will be given toward stabilizing the lines of our troops in North Korea. If the Chinese Communists subsequently ignore the demand by the U.N. for withdrawal, such military action as seems to promise the maximum of effectiveness will be ordered. This may result in aid to Chinese guerrillas and factions lined up against the Communists. The full force of American air power and sea power will be exerted in a war that may not come to a climax immediately but only after several months of buildup of Chinese anti-Communist armies wherever they may be recruited.

The sending of any more land armies from the outside to the mainland of China is not likely but the Chinese Communists may find that attacks in the south of China will necessitate the withdrawal of much of their forces now concentrated in Manchuria. For the present, it will be not a "world war," but a limited "local war" in the Far East only.

Zoning Law Hearing

Nov. 30, 1950

Editor, The Freeman:

The purpose of this letter and request for it being published in your paper is to have it reach more readers, regarding the meeting held in the Common Council quarters in our city hall last evening in regards to a zoning law hearing to make Hunter street from Wurts street to Hone street a business section. I listened carefully to both sides and as it went along it seemed to be a get at each others throat affair.

It should have been a common sense business meeting and a suitable and understanding agreement solved. I have been a resident for 17 years in the disputed district and hoped to attend a more business-like session.

I spoke for a few moments in favor of the change to a business district because as a citizen I had that right.

After the hearing ended I was approached by two members of the opposing group and was accused of working for and favoring the party interested in securing a change of zoning laws which would enable them—the Levine Bag Co.,—to build a place for bags and trucks.

I was accused of this charge in a menacing way and was informed that I would have no more friends. I have many friends on both sides of this issue and as to being charged with working for the Levine Co., that's not correct. I am self-employed and have worked for any one, Jewish, German, Polish, Negro, Italian or any one, so as to make an honest living.

I am sure that when and if the building and business permits are granted the project will be satisfactory to all concerned and that the building and its contents will not be injurious to any one at all.

Thanking you, I am,
Yours respectfully,
RODERICK M. BINCH.

Television Cutting Movies 15 Per Cent

Hollywood, Dec. 1 (AP)—Movie attendance is off 10 to 15 per cent in television areas, says theatre magnate Charles Skouras.

As a result, theatres fighting for their very existence "very soon" will offer programs combining "a good feature picture and television entertainment," he predicts.

Until now, theatre men have been shy about public statements concerning TV's inroads on theatre attendance. But Skouras, president of the 500-house national theatre chain, made a surprisingly frank declaration before a meeting of the Hollywood Foreign Correspondents Association yesterday.

"Our business has been hurt badly in areas of television reception," he said. "Our New York business has been very bad, our Chicago business has been very bad and our business in southern California has been very bad.

"Attendance is off anywhere from 10 to 15 per cent in television areas. Business is off only two to four per cent in areas without television. So we know where to put the blame."

Skouras emphasized that "television is here to stay" and that it is giving "terrific competition to motion pictures."

The East player had no sense in today's hand. A sensible person would have settled for a small loss at five hearts rather than risk a big loss by letting South play the hand at four spades redoubled. However, if East had been sensible we wouldn't have noticed the spectacular defense needed to defeat the redoubled contract of four spades.

East had the right idea when he jumped to four hearts. His partner would have made that contract, and the opponents might have been shut out of a good spade contract. However, South was not to be shut out.

West's double of four spades was reasonable enough, and North had a good sporting redouble. East knew that he had no defense at all, and he should have run to the comparative safety of five hearts. It would cost only 100 points, whereas a pass might cost him over 1000 points. But he stuck by his guns, and lived to tell the story.

West opened the ace of hearts, dropping South's king. It was clear to him that South had the missing five small spades and only one heart. South therefore had seven cards in the minor suits. It could not cost a trick to lead another heart. If dummy ruffed, of course, West would eventually get two trump tricks to add to the two red aces.

As expected, South had to ruff in his own hand, discarding a diamond from the dummy. He led the four of spades from his hand and allowed West to hold the trick with the queen. West thereupon led a third round of hearts.

Once again South had to ruff in his own hand. At this point he had only two trumps left—the six and the seven. He led the six, finessing the nine from the dummy.

Now he could, if he so chose, get back a club and take another trump finesse to pick up West's trumps. But he would eventually have to knock out the ace of diamonds, and West would then be able to take the rest of his hearts.

Therefore declarer had to let the trumps rest for a while. After winning the trump finesse with dummy's nine of spades, declarer forced out the ace of diamonds. Thereupon West led hearts for the fourth time!

This play obliged declarer to use up his last trump. West's trumps could not be picked up, and the contract was set.

It is usually horrible defense to lead a suit that declarer can ruff in either hand. In this case, West had to lead such a suit three times to defeat the contract! If West had led any other suit at any point, South's trumps would have lasted, and the contract would have been made.

Ask Freight Hike

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP) — The eastern railroads want a four per cent increase in freight rates. They say they need it to meet higher costs of doing business and to meet the needs of national defense. They petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission today, declaring they are confronted with increased expenses for wages, fuel, materials and supplies. These expenses, they said, have increased by at least $127,113,000 per year since July, 1949. The roads indicated that they feel even a four per cent increase at this time might not be enough. "If operating expenses should be increased subsequent to the filing of this petition," the railroad spokesmen said, "it will be necessary to bring the changed situation to the attention of the commission by a supplemental petition."

Answer to Previous Puzzle

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Nov. 30—The election returns, especially in Ohio, prove that the union racket is not a labor movement and that the boss racketeers are not labor leaders but parasites on labor. The Roosevelt cabal, the illiterate "educators" of the public school system and the media of public expression all preached the heresy that this country is a democracy. They also promoted the fraudulent pretensions of Lewis, Green, Murray, Tobin and the other sorry fakers of that cult. In Ohio they were beaten on both counts. The Republicans who were singled out for special abuse all won over flagrant Democrats, and the unioneers got a dramatic repudiation.

These goons never had a mandate from labor. They were inflicted on labor by Roosevelt and his wife by force of the Wagner Act. The miserable old handwasher who lent his name to that iniquity now dodders into senility with a monstrous record of bloodshed, vandalism and treason for his monument. Now they are all rejected in the most conclusive test that could have been devised. The whole pack went after Taft in a campaign that did not shrink from incitations to physical assault and implications of assassination. The CIO's subtleties included an adaptation of the old African dodger of the carnival midways in which American voters were bidden to throw baseballs at a nasty caricature of Mr. Taft under the adjuration, "Knock this guy's teeth out." Another political refinement presented Taft as a target in a shooting gallery where the weapons were .22 rifles.

In the face of these inflammations, some of the vermin had the effrontery to roll their eyes and deplore the resort to anarchy when a pair of gunmen tried to shoot President Truman. What else had the CIO and the White House been preaching all these years but bloodshed and total contempt for lawful government?

It is the more heartening to observe that Taft not only beat them but beat them up. The returns left no doubt that the voters were loyal to the United States as against the enemies of constituted authority.

There never has been the slightest excuse for any journalist, radio pundit or educator in the predatory public school system to refer to these public enemies as labor leaders or to their racket, in the larger sense, as "labor" or the "labor vote." Lewis himself confessed years ago that there was no such thing as a labor movement in our country. There was, instead, just a set of greedy rivalries among a small clique of bad men who, by reason of Roosevelt's nasty cynicism, had been given power over millions of citizens. Blackmailers, extortioners and traitors had been invited to tax these captives of a totally un-American institution which owed its origin to criminal insurrections, anarchy and treason against several of the states. Their claims on the earnings of these subjects were a first lien on a total of billions of dollars a year, with priority over family obligations, the income tax and religious dues.

The beating Taft gave them showed how the laboring people hated them. He licked them in their own theoretical strongholds. He knocked Harry S. Truman bow-legged, for Truman had selected his pathetic flunkey, Averell Harriman, the Mortimer Snerd of Russian lend-lease, to accuse Taft of promoting communism.

Truman's poolroom vulgarity in St. Louis where the repartee followed the sordid "Give 'em hell" motive of the 1948 campaign did not click during a war of his own guilty fault. He smeared as before, but the fact couldn't be lied away that he and Roosevelt had wantonly routed down a road of sorrow some 9,000 American young men who never had a chance. Now, almost half of them were "missing" and reasonably presumed to have been slaughtered in cold blood by an enemy nurtured to maturity by Roosevelt, Hopkins, Harriman and Truman.

In California the contest was decisive between the issue of treason and Dick Nixon, the man who did so much to expose the protected traitors in the State Department. Nixon won easily and the fact that La Boca Grande laid her tawdry prestige on the line turned out well for the republic. Her endorsements of the Gahagan woman for the Senate and of Jimmy Roosevelt for governor were a total commitment, so when Nixon and Governor Warren knocked them into the creek the old woman went head-over-applecart with them. By the mandate of the returns out there, she ought to be thrown off the American delegation in the United Nations and stripped of any official status that she can exploit to chisel a buck for herself and the ineffable aleyot, the ballyhoo man for their tail-board show on radio and television.

P.S.C. Says L.I. Conductors Have Too Many Jobs to Do

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Conductors on the Long Island Railroad have too many chores and "must violate one rule to comply with other instructions," the State Public Service Commission was told yesterday.

The testimony was given as the commission continued a hearing on the Thanksgiving eve wreck in Queens which took 78 lives and injured 331 other persons.

Crewmen of the two trains which crashed were questioned by J. E. Kelton, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

He asked whether the line's rules governing the men's work made it possible for them to properly examine tickets, collect cash fares and perform operational duties promptly.

"Is it possible to maintain schedules and comply with the manual of instructions?" he asked of Howard Austin, of Medford, Long Island, conductor of a train which rammed into the rear of a stalled train.

'You Can't Do It'

The conductor replied "You can't do it," and he agreed that "you must violate one rule to comply with other instructions."

A brakeman on the same train, John J. Nuttall, of Babylon, Long Island, told of the difficulty of handling newspaper cargo carried on car platforms, examining tickets, collecting fares and exchanging signals with other crew members.

When Nuttall ended the account of his wreck experience, his lips were trembling and his head rested on his hands.

Austin and other witnesses testified that they often could not hear communication whistles on trains while they were busy among standees collecting fares and checking tickets.

Austin and Nuttall said the motorman of the train which caused the wreck had appeared in good physical and mental condition that day.

The motorman, Benjaman J. Pokorney, 55, died in the disaster. Some witnesses have said he drove his electric train through warning signals.

The commission was told that a train employe could work seven days a week for a year if he desired. The testimony was given by Edward K. St. Clair, of Valley Stream, Long Island, assistant passenger trainmaster.

This testimony was brought out in connection with previous evidence that Pokorney had worked without a day off from Nov. 1 until Nov. 22, the day of the wreck.

The Public Service Commission will shift the scene of its investigation late today to the bedside of an injured brakeman of the rammed train. The brakeman, Bertram N. Biggam, is in Jamaica Hospital, Queens.

P.S.C. Says L.I. Conductors Have Too Many Jobs to Do

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Conductors on the Long Island Railroad have too many chores and "must violate one rule to comply with other instructions," the State Public Service Commission was told yesterday.

The testimony was given as the commission continued a hearing on the Thanksgiving eve wreck in Queens which took 78 lives and injured 331 other persons.

Crewmen of the two trains which crashed were questioned by J. E. Kelton, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

He asked whether the line's rules governing the men's work made it possible for them to properly examine tickets, collect cash fares and perform operational duties promptly.

"Is it possible to maintain schedules and comply with the manual of instructions?" he asked of Howard Austin, of Medford, Long Island, conductor of a train which rammed into the rear of a stalled train.

'You Can't Do It'

The conductor replied "You can't do it," and he agreed that "you must violate one rule to comply with other instructions."

A brakeman on the same train, John J. Nuttall, of Babylon, Long Island, told of the difficulty of handling newspaper cargo carried on car platforms, examining tickets, collecting fares and exchanging signals with other crew members.

When Nuttall ended the account of his wreck experience, his lips were trembling and his head rested on his hands.

Austin and other witnesses testified that they often could not hear communication whistles on trains while they were busy among standees collecting fares and checking tickets.

Austin and Nuttall said the motorman of the train which caused the wreck had appeared in good physical and mental condition that day.

The motorman, Benjaman J. Pokorney, 55, died in the disaster. Some witnesses have said he drove his electric train through warning signals.

The commission was told that a train employe could work seven days a week for a year if he desired. The testimony was given by Edward K. St. Clair, of Valley Stream, Long Island, assistant passenger trainmaster.

This testimony was brought out in connection with previous evidence that Pokorney had worked without a day off from Nov. 1 until Nov. 22, the day of the wreck.

The Public Service Commission will shift the scene of its investigation late today to the bedside of an injured brakeman of the rammed train. The brakeman, Bertram N. Biggam, is in Jamaica Hospital, Queens.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., Dec. 1—The prospect of higher taxes and credit restrictions is casting a shadow over the business outlook for the coming winter. These apply to automobiles, refrigerators and television sets; but not as to most consumer items.

During recent months we know that the output of industry has exceeded consumption. Automobiles and trucks have been produced at the unprecedented rate of ten million per year; over 20 per cent of all units now on the road. The recent rate of home construction has exceeded any previously recorded annual output by over 50 per cent. Scare buying lifted the sale of household appliances to unprecedented heights during the summer.

However, we find already that reaction has set in, with lumber prices breaking during the last few weeks. The sales of many consumer items are back to pre-June levels. New construction is currently off sharply. We know that the easy credit policies of the federal government agencies have artificially stimulated home building. With the tightening up of credit controls further cutbacks will continue. Recent increases in bank loans outstanding have been largely siphoned off into consumer credit expansion. This caused a tremendous boom in the purchase of consumer goods during recent months. Much stricter credit regulations will certainly have a depressing effect on the inflationary spiral. Now, is no time to buy everything in sight.

Outlook for Defense Spending

Defense orders in 1951 will undoubtedly maintain high employment, at least during the coming winter. Due to the allocation of certain materials in short supply being funneled into defense activities, business profits will not be uniformly good. Dislocations will take place. This will create shortages of materials throughout the nation which can have an adverse effect on the normal flow of business and profits. Government bureaucrats do queer things.

Investors who search for an inflation hedge in common stocks should watch their step. The Dow-Jones Industrial Stock Average is higher than it has been for the last 20 years. More burdensome taxes during 1951 will have an adverse effect on earnings. Many companies fully converted from civilian to military production will have their manufacturing margins cut. War stocks are certainly at their peak. Don't forget what happened during the renegotiation period of 1946-47.

Diversify Your Investments

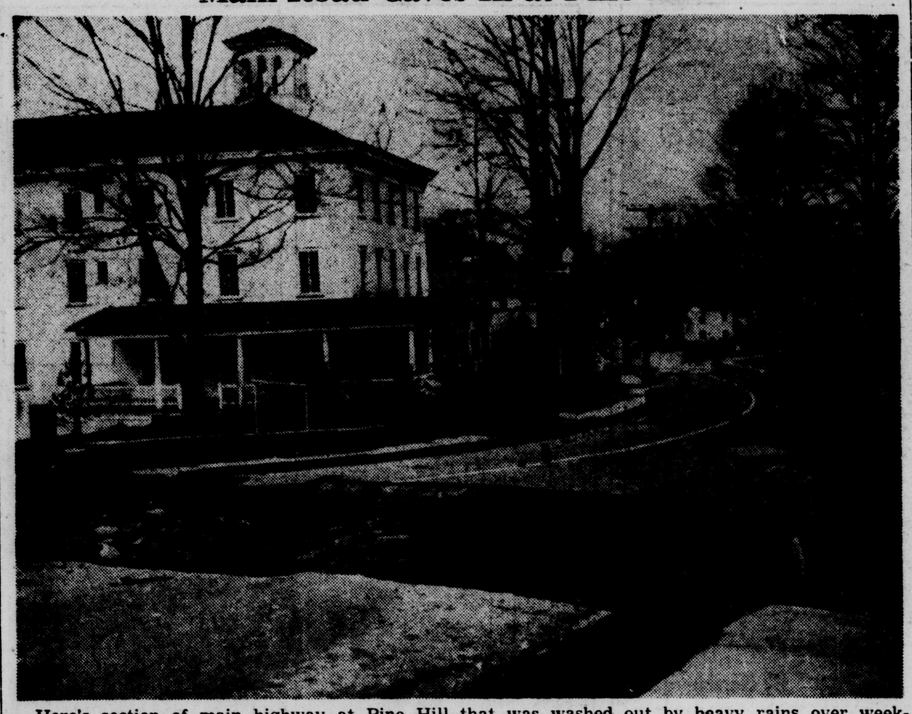

Government policy makers are now pouring water over the inflationary fire on which they were dumping gasoline only a short time ago. This vacillating policy requires careful diversification of investment funds during the coming winter. Have less than half of the total funds in common stocks. For this half buy only securities of companies that make some money both during good times and bad times; and where the management is of high character. Buy no bonds except Convertible Bonds. Have the other half of your investment funds in Cash, Saving Accounts, Government Bonds, etc. awaiting more favorable buying opportunities later.

Political Outlook

No one in this world has gotten something for nothing for any great length of time. I should, therefore, like to point out that we are heading for some very serious trouble in this country unless employes improve their output to compensate for increases in wage rates; otherwise, future increases in wages will prove to be an illusion. Subsidies given one section mean taking wealth away from another section. In the long run employers are only cutting their own throats by charging too high prices.

Honest value for goods and services should be the aim of us all. Regimentation is not the answer to our troubles. The planners, whether they be in Washington, London or Moscow, never create wealth, all they do is to re-distribute the fruits of other peoples labor. This is not treating one's neighbors fairly. Basically what really counts most of all is how we people treat one another. Only through an economy based on the Teachings of Jesus can we hope to maintain and improve our splendid standard of living.

Mother—No, Doctor, indelible!

A Bournemouth, England, woman, upon reaching 105, advised friends to "Never hurry." That's the shortest recipe we've heard for a long time.

Two fishermen sitting on a bridge, their lines in the water, made a bet as to who would catch the first fish. One got a bite and became so excited that he fell off the bridge. "Oh, well," said the other, "if you're going to dive for them, the bet's off!"

Ricky came into the school room one morning plainly excited.

Teacher—Yes, Ricky, what is it?

Ricky—I don't want to scare you, but my dad said if I didn't get better grades someone was due for a licking."

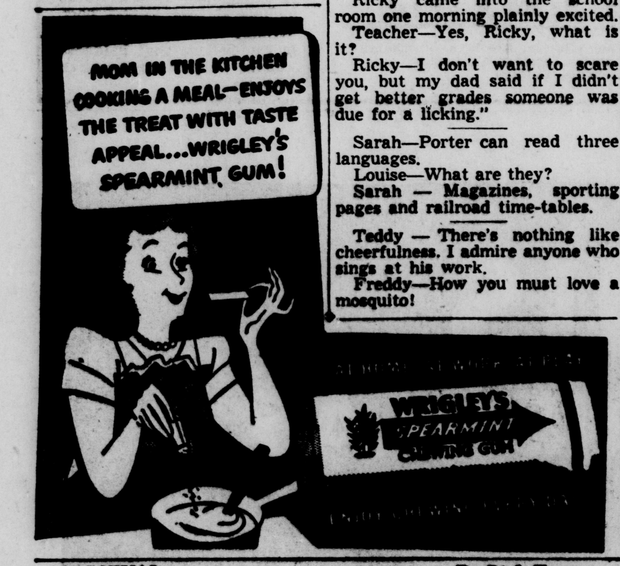

Sarah—Porter can read three languages.

Louise—What are they?

Sarah — Magazines, sporting pages and railroad time-tables.

Teddy — There's nothing like cheerfulness. I admire anyone who sings at his work.

Freddy—How you must love a mosquito!

Opponents of Feinberg Law To Seek Stay in Enforcement

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—New York state's Anti-Communist Teacher Law is held constitutional by the state's highest court, but opponents will seek a stay in enforcement.

The fight against the law will be carried to the U. S. Supreme Court by a New York city local of the Teachers' Union (Ind.) and probably by the Communist party of New York. Meantime, the teachers' local will go to court for a stay.

The law—known as the Feinberg Law—is nearly two years old. Court orders have prevented the Board of Regents from enforcing it so far.

The State Court of Appeals held unanimously yesterday that the law was a legal "new strand in the mesh" to screen "those who teach the state's children."

Three Separate Actions

The Communist party, five New York city school teachers and a taxpayers' group had contended in three separate actions that the law violated the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech, assembly and association. They also argued that the statute was a bill of attainder (a legislative act providing punishment without trial) and violated the "due process" clause of the federal constitution.

The seven judges held that the guaranteed freedoms "are not absolute" and "do not deprive the state of its primary right of self preservation."

Lewis Wrote Opinion

In an opinion written by Associate Judge Edmund H. Lewis, the court declared:

"When in its judgment and discretion, the Legislature finds acts by public employes which threaten the integrity and competency of a governmental service, such as the public school system, legislation adequate to maintain the usefulness of the service affected is necessarily required to forestall such danger."

The court said the law—by import—provided opportunity for a public school employe or applicant to present any evidence that he is not a member of a subversive organization.

Passed in 1949

The Feinberg law, passed by the 1949 Legislature and signed by Governor Dewey, bars from public school employment members of organizations listed as subversive by the Board of Regents. The board, governing body of the state's educational system, is required to hold hearings before branding an organization subversive. Local school boards then screen employes and applicants.

The law's preamble refers to the Communist party as a subversive group. The preamble says in part: "There is common report that members of subversive groups, and particularly of the Communist party and certain of its affiliates, have infiltrated into public employment in the schools of the state."

The Board of Regents, governing body of the state's educational system, will discuss the decision at a meeting Dec. 14. If no stay has been granted, a Regents' committee may recommend delay pending the Supreme Court test or may advise immediate enforcement. Regents Chancellor William Wallin said he had no idea which.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL — By CHARLES DICKENS

Young Scrooge used to have the time of his life at Old Fezziwig's Christmas parties. No one was jollier than Scrooge, none danced more with Fezziwig's six pretty daughters.

And never was there such music as used to come from Fezziwig's well-fueled fiddler!

High point of the evening was when the fiddle struck up "Sir Roger de Coverley" and Mr. Fezziwig took the floor with Mrs. Fezziwig.

Truck Driver Is To Be Arraigned

Hudson, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—Garvin S. Noel, 35, of Nashua, N. H., will be arraigned Monday in Columbia county court on indictments charging him with criminal negligence and leaving the scene of an accident.

Noel, a truck driver, was arrested Nov. 24 in Albany several hours after the body of Thomas Roweska, 45, Clermont farmhand, was found on Route 9, about 12 miles south of Hudson.

A county grand jury indicted Noel yesterday. Criminal negligence is a felony. The other charge is a misdemeanor.

A hitch-hiker, Edward Capoccia, 22, of Rome, N. Y., told police he was riding with Noel when the accident occurred. Capoccia said Noel left him at the scene.

Labrador retrievers were found to be especially adept at scenting out land mines during the war.

10 Perish as Yule Piece Catches Fire

Halifax, N. S. Dec. 1 (AP)—A gaily-lit Christmas display burst into flame in a department store window here last night and at least 10 persons perished in the fire which quickly enveloped the building.

Police Chief Verdun Mitchell said the death toll could not be fixed definitely until some time today. A section of the crumbling building was too hazardous to be searched for bodies last night.

Damage was expected to exceed $500,000. Adjoining stores were extensively damaged by smoke.

The fire broke out in the third-story toyland of Mays, Ltd., just before closing time. About 30 Christmas shoppers and employes were in the store.

A spokesman for the fire marshal's office said the store building had no rear door and no sprinkler system.

Roman Loses His Annulment Plea

Mineola, N. Y., Dec. 1 (AP)—A jury of 12 middle-aged men yesterday denied an annulment to the husband of ex-dancer Patricia Dixon Roman.

The jurors ruled that Mrs. Roman was "chaste and virtuous" when she became a bride.

Her husband, Louis Roman, 45, a Wall street securities salesman, charged during the three-week trial that his wife had numerous affairs with men but represented herself as chaste before their marriage. She denied the charges.

The jury deliberated four hours and ten minutes before announcing its verdict to Supreme Court Justice Thomas J. Cuff.

At one point the panel requested a dictionary to look up the definition of the word "chaste."

After the verdict Mrs. Roman sobbed and said, "this means I can keep my baby. That is my big relief. Now his father can't take him from me."

The baby, nine-month-old Edgar Roman, had appeared in court with his mother on several occasions, but was not in the courtroom yesterday.

Roman, looking glum, left court without comment. He also has pending against his wife a separate suit for divorce, charging adultery.

Mrs. Roman has filed a divorce action against her husband. No dates have been set for hearing the countersuits.

Nine Years Ago Japs Decided to Fight United States

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Captured documents show that it was just nine years ago today—Dec. 1, 1941—when Japan decided to wage war on the United States.

Seven days later, while a special Japanese envoy discussed peace with Secretary of State Hull in Washington, the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor plunged this nation into the world's bloodiest conflict.

One week ago another Far Eastern delegation—this one from Communist China — arrived in New York to appear before the United Nations. Its leader, Wu Hsiu Chuan, said that "a profound friendship has always existed between the Chinese people and the American people."

Two days later—on Sunday—it was apparent that Red China had opened a powerful offensive against U.N. troops in Korea. Many observers had predicted such a move would set off another World War.

In Dec., 1941, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill came to this country to confer with President Franklin D. Roosevelt and yesterday it was announced that Prime Minister Attlee will arrive probably early next week for talks with President Truman.

New Paltz Players Stress Importance Of Juvenile Plays

A project to provide more plays for more children is being undertaken this year by the New Paltz Players and Delta Psi Omega, the dramatic organizations of New Paltz State Teachers College.

"As future teachers, we in the Players realize how powerful is the medium of the theatre in guiding the mental and emotional development of the young, "Conrad Schwarz, Players' president says. "It is of great benefit for a child to experience entertainment which is designed expressly for him. Children's plays help to develop cultural tastes and give children food for the imaginative play which forms such a large part of their daily lives."

Bearing these objects in mind, the Players have inaugurated a program of children's theatre. They now hope to present an annual children's play as part of their dramatic activities. The production will be given first before an audience of college students, townspeople, and children in the New Paltz area. Later in the year the Players hope to go on tour to elementary schools in the surrounding vicinity.

The first production of the children's theatre project will be "The Emperor's New Clothes," by Charlotte Charpening, slated to play in the college auditorium December 8 and 9.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

PARTY IN TWO PARTS

A reader asks: "Would it be proper to have a housewarming in two parts? For instance, have a group of non-workers in the afternoon and another group of the others in the evening? My husband thinks it won't do to separate the groups because many are friends."

I agree with your husband that it would be a mistake to send separate invitations. It might, however, be possible to name two hours in the invitations, say from 3 to 6 and again from 8 to 10 and let the guests make their own choice of time.

Dear Mrs. Post: What should be said to the maid of honor and bridesmaids who stand in the receiving line? Guests congratulate the parents and the bridegroom and wish the bride happiness. But I'm at a loss to know what to say to the others.

Answer: As you shake hands, you say whatever is pleasant and true, such as how lovely the bride is or what a beautiful wedding, and pass on.

Girl Writes Boy

Dear Mrs. Post: When a girl moves out of town would it be improper for her to write to the boys back home as well as the girls? Or should the boys be first to write her?

Answer: If they are old friends, there is no reason why she may not write first to boys as well as to girls.

Substituting at Bridge

Dear Mrs. Post: When a person does someone a favor at the last minute by substituting for an absent member at bridge club, is the substitute indebted to the hostess or vice versa?

Answer: There is no especial obligation on the part of either.

A shower is a friendly way to welcome a new clergyman or new house owner and can be inexpensive. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but she gives suggestions for a variety of showers in leaflet E-13, "Showers." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Critical, Not Hopeless

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today the military situation in Korea is serious and critical but not hopeless. He added, however, that he regards as "an enormous handicap, without precedent in military operations," the United Nations restrictions against unlimited pursuit of the Chinese Communists and aerial attacks on their Manchurian bases.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 1 (AP)—Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president, has told Brown University sophomores that the developments of the past 48 hours in Korea have reduced their chances of finishing college by 60 per cent. He urged them, however, to complete their education if they can.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

(For HAL BOYLE)

Chongchon river front, Korea (AP)—All through the day the withdrawal had continued and now it went on into the night.

It had washed through Kunu, threatened by the Red Horde to the northeast and east, and along the cold and dusty roads into and out of the town.

It had flowed past the outpost battalion of mustached Lt. Col. Charles F. Kane of Caldwell, Ida., a desolate post manned by soft speaking men on the northeast outskirts of the town. There the withdrawal was only a trickle of vehicles but a steady stream of refugees.

Hundreds of These

There were hundreds of these, the little girl holding a cold ear in each hand, the tired, bearded elder tugging at a bullock. They walked the fields and the icy river's edge and the railway trestles over the dust-choked roads among American vehicles moving away from the river. They spoke only occasionally but their mood was reflected in the mournful lowing of their few cattle.

The sun dropped in the west, glaring through the dust with its dying rays.

The Americans shivered and fastened the last buttons on their coats or jackets. Drivers, their faces masked heavily with dust, switched on their lights.

The darkness softened the tortured spines and peaks of the mountains and the headlights stabbed at the blackness.

The lights reminded you of the lights on New York's Triborough Bridge or on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge—and they reminded you too of what a beautiful target they would make for strafing aircraft.

Away From Kunu

The lights moved into the country now, away from Kunu. The first few frozen furrows of the fields of the roadside glided by, hard and brown, some glistening with frost. The bare tree branches stood out briefly and then retreated into the darkness.

Occasionally the lights picked out a signpost like "Sukchon" or "Pyongyang" or "Sunchon" or any one of a dozen towns which a few days ago we had called "rear areas" and considered safe and secure.

The withdrawal continued south. The hills were unseen now except when they loomed up suddenly to blot out the stars.

Off the road occasionally there was the orange gleam of a fire, throwing flickering yellow light on the doughboys with hands outstretched to the warmth, or an abandoned campsite, vast in its empty loneliness.

The withdrawal wound along the valleys and crawled painfully over the hills, steered by the slender flashlight wands of the military policemen exhorting the laggard to put on more speed.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

PARTY IN TWO PARTS

A reader asks: "Would it be proper to have a housewarming in two parts? For instance, have a group of non-workers in the afternoon and another group of the others in the evening? My husband thinks it won't do to separate the groups because many are friends."

I agree with your husband that it would be a mistake to send separate invitations. It might, however, be possible to name two hours in the invitations, say from 3 to 6 and again from 8 to 10 and let the guests make their own choice of time.

Dear Mrs. Post: What should be said to the maid of honor and bridesmaids who stand in the receiving line? Guests congratulate the parents and the bridegroom and wish the bride happiness. But I'm at a loss to know what to say to the others.

Answer: As you shake hands, you say whatever is pleasant and true, such as how lovely the bride is or what a beautiful wedding, and pass on.

Girl Writes Boy

Dear Mrs. Post: When a girl moves out of town would it be improper for her to write to the boys back home as well as the girls? Or should the boys be first to write her?

Answer: If they are old friends, there is no reason why she may not write first to boys as well as to girls.

Substituting at Bridge

Dear Mrs. Post: When a person does someone a favor at the last minute by substituting for an absent member at bridge club, is the substitute indebted to the hostess or vice versa?

Answer: There is no especial obligation on the part of either.

A shower is a friendly way to welcome a new clergyman or new house owner and can be inexpensive. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but she gives suggestions for a variety of showers in leaflet E-13, "Showers." Critical, Not Hopeless

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today the military situation in Korea is serious and critical but not hopeless. Army, Oklahoma Face Traditional Rivals in Final Games of Season

Navy and Aggies Could Be Tough

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Oklahoma and Army, ranked as the nation's two top college football teams, lay their unbeaten streaks on the line again tomorrow.

Oklahoma, seeking its 31st straight victory, tangles with its arch rival, Oklahoma A. & M., before 40,000 at Stillwater, Okla. Army, seeking to extend its unbeaten string to 29 straight, meets Navy in the annual service classic before 100,000 at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

These two games highlight a sparse national program that includes such traditional tilts as the Tennessee - Vanderbilt fray at Memphis and the Notre Dame-Southern California clash at Los Angeles. The Miami (Fla.) vs. Missouri game tonight at Miami starts off the week-end activities following Texas' 17-0 victory over the Texas Aggies yesterday.

Heavy Choices

Oklahoma, already tapped for the Sugar Bowl, and Army, which prefers not to play post season games, are heavy favorites. But Sooner Coach Bud Wilkinson and Earl Blaik of West Point are taking nothing for granted. Right now both would probably settle for one-point victories.

A victory for Oklahoma over the Aggies, followed by a Sugar Bowl triumph over Kentucky, would give the Sooners 32 straight, within hailing distance of the all-time streak of 34 set by Pennsylvania back in the gaslight era of the 1890's. Tennessee won 35 straight regular season games back in the 1930's, but lost two post-season games. Nothing would delight the Aggies better than to shatter the Sooners' streak.

Navy Team Up

That goes double for Navy against Army. Under similar circumstances two years ago the underdog midshipmen tied the Cadets, 21-21, and five years ago dropped a 21-18 thriller. As a rule past records mean nothing in an Army-Navy struggle.

Tennessee, the nation's fourth ranked team and headed for a Cotton Bowl clash with Texas, similarly may run into trouble against Vanderbilt. The Vols, fresh from their slight upset of Kentucky last week, are favored by two touchdowns.

The Pitt-Penn state game, originally scheduled last Saturday at Pittsburgh, but postponed because of storm conditions, is on tap tomorrow along with other sectionally important tussles. These include Auburn-Alabama, Georgia Tech-Georgia, Holy Cross-Boston College, Louisiana State-Tulane, Mississippi State-Mississippi, North Carolina-Virginia, Rice - Baylor, Texas Christian-Southern Methodist, Maryland-Virginia Tech, Syracuse-Fordham, Kansas State-Wichita, and Richmond-William and Mary.

Culmone Sets Sights On All-Time Mark

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Jockey Joe Culmone, already holder of the modern day one-season riding record, set his sights today on Walter Miller's all-time mark of 388 winners set in 1906. Through yesterday Culmone has 354. He has one month left to get the 35 winners necessary to shatter Miller's mark.

Little Joe rode two winners at Bowie yesterday while his nearest rival, Willie Shoemaker, was blanked for the second straight day at Hollywood. Culmone, who several weeks ago, trailed Shoemaker by seven now leads Willie by ten.

Kirkwood, Turnesa Share Miami Lead

Miami, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—Miami's 27th annual $10,000 Open golf tournament went into the second round today with 31 par-busters scrambling for the lead.

Joe Kirkwood, Jr., who spends more time making movies than playing golf, and Jim Turnesa, youngest of the six golfing Turnesa Brothers, held a one-stroke lead over the field of 160 pros and amateurs. Both carded four-under-par 66's in the opening 18-hole round yesterday.

Twenty-nine others cracked the 35-35—70 par for the Miami Springs course in the first round.

Jimmy Demaret appeared the pace-setter in the opening round, then blew up in the last three holes. The Ojai, Calif., veteran was five under par going into the 15th hole. Then he went three over par for the next three holes and came in with a 31-36—67.

Frank Stranahan, former British Open champion and leading U. S. amateur from Toledo, Ohio, Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., and Dick Mayer of Old Greenwich, Conn., shared second low honors with Demaret at 67.

It was a hard day for the big-name stars. Sammy Snead, leading money winner this year, was forced to assemble a makeshift set of clubs at the last minute because his own didn't arrive from Chicago. Using clubs borrowed from four persons, including his wife, he managed a 69.

Defending champion Freddy Haas, Jr., found the greens too fast and tricky and came in with a one over par 35-36—71.

A Good Start

Miami, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—South Florida's 142-day winter thoroughbred racing season is off to an auspicious start. Three hundred more persons streamed through the gates at Tropical Park yesterday to wager $78,349 more than on opening day last year. The opening day crowd of 11,504 — topping last year's attendance by 303—wagered $502,245 compared to last year's $423,896.

ALL THE WAY—Oklahoma established an all-time record for consecutive victories without resorting to the two-platoon system. The line, led by Right End Frankie Anderson, left, and aptly-named Left Tackle Jim Weatherall, right, plays offense and defense. So does Fullback Leon Heath, who backs it up.

Ez Has Four-Pound Pull Over Barone

Cincinnati, Dec. 1 (AP) — It looks as if heavyweight champ Ezzard Charles will go into his title bout here Tuesday night against Nick Barone of Syracuse with a weight advantage of three or four pounds. If he does, it will be the first time in two years that the sharpshooting Charles has been on the heavy end of the weights.

The 15-round scrap between Charles and Barone had to be postponed from last Tuesday until next week because of the heavy snowstorm which made the streets hazardous.

Orange-Sullivan League Schedule Favors Rec Five in Early Stages

Two More Home Games Before Road Opener

The Recreation cagers have two more Orange-Sullivan League games at home before they hit the road against Stewart Field on December 13, according to the official schedule released today.

The powerful Monticello club will be at the municipal auditorium Monday night, followed by the new Jeffersonville entry on December 11.

One remaining home date has yet to be fixed—that between the Recreations and the Stewart Field Panthers.

Pointing out the early season advantage of the schedule for the Recreations, Manager Andy Murphy said it would give the locals a good chance to weld into a unit before they embark on road trips.

"Our performance against Middletown satisfied me that we have real scoring punch," the Rec mentor said, "but the O-S League is pretty tough on visiting teams. That's where Kingston teams failed dismally in the past and we'll have to improve our performances if we expect to stay in contention."

The schedule for the first round follows:

December 4—Monticello, here.
December 11 — Jeffersonville, here.
December 13—Stewart Field, away.
December 17 — Middletown, away.
December 18—Woodridge, here.
January 4—Montgomery, away.
January 8—Montgomery, here.
January 9—Jeffersonville, away.
January 13—Monticello, away.
January 15—Newburgh, here.
January 27—Woodridge, away.
February 3—Newburgh, away.

Minor Moguls Meet In St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—Baseball men are beginning to drift in here for the annual minor and major league baseball meetings.

The committee in charge reported the war scare is keeping some of the minor and major leaguers away, but it expects a good crowd.

The Western League plans to hold meetings today and tomorrow. The Texas League probably will hold a preliminary session tomorrow.

First business up for minor league representatives is the minor league draft set for Monday and Tuesday. The minors' first general meeting is Wednesday.

New Lightweight Whiz Makes Garden Debut

New York, Dec. 1 (AP) — The once active lightweight division may get a little pep injected into it tonight when Jose Gatica, a 25-year-old slugger out of Argentina, makes his U. S. debut against Terry Young in Madison Square Garden.

The 135-pound class used to be the liveliest in boxing but it has been dormant of late. Champion Ike Williams did a pretty thorough job of cleaning up the pretenders in the last few years and now Ike has begun to slip.

Few of the contenders have anything spectacular to offer and that's where Jose comes in. He was picked up by Charley Johnston, manager of featherweight King Sandy Saddler, on one of his South American trips.

Army, Oklahoma Face Traditional Rivals in Final Games of Season

Navy and Aggies Could Be Tough

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Oklahoma and Army, ranked as the nation's two top college football teams, lay their unbeaten streaks on the line again tomorrow.

Oklahoma, seeking its 31st straight victory, tangles with its arch rival, Oklahoma A. & M., before 40,000 at Stillwater, Okla. Army, seeking to extend its unbeaten string to 29 straight, meets Navy in the annual service classic before 100,000 at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

These two games highlight a sparse national program that includes such traditional tilts as the Tennessee - Vanderbilt fray at Memphis and the Notre Dame-Southern California clash at Los Angeles. The Miami (Fla.) vs. Missouri game tonight at Miami starts off the week-end activities following Texas' 17-0 victory over the Texas Aggies yesterday.

Heavy Choices

Oklahoma, already tapped for the Sugar Bowl, and Army, which prefers not to play post season games, are heavy favorites. But Sooner Coach Bud Wilkinson and Earl Blaik of West Point are taking nothing for granted. Right now both would probably settle for one-point victories.

A victory for Oklahoma over the Aggies, followed by a Sugar Bowl triumph over Kentucky, would give the Sooners 32 straight, within hailing distance of the all-time streak of 34 set by Pennsylvania back in the gaslight era of the 1890's. Tennessee won 35 straight regular season games back in the 1930's, but lost two post-season games. Nothing would delight the Aggies better than to shatter the Sooners' streak.

Navy Team Up

That goes double for Navy against Army. Under similar circumstances two years ago the underdog midshipmen tied the Cadets, 21-21, and five years ago dropped a 21-18 thriller. As a rule past records mean nothing in an Army-Navy struggle.

Tennessee, the nation's fourth ranked team and headed for a Cotton Bowl clash with Texas, similarly may run into trouble against Vanderbilt. The Vols, fresh from their slight upset of Kentucky last week, are favored by two touchdowns.

The Pitt-Penn state game, originally scheduled last Saturday at Pittsburgh, but postponed because of storm conditions, is on tap tomorrow along with other sectionally important tussles. These include Auburn-Alabama, Georgia Tech-Georgia, Holy Cross-Boston College, Louisiana State-Tulane, Mississippi State-Mississippi, North Carolina-Virginia, Rice - Baylor, Texas Christian-Southern Methodist, Maryland-Virginia Tech, Syracuse-Fordham, Kansas State-Wichita, and Richmond-William and Mary.

Culmone Sets Sights On All-Time Mark

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Jockey Joe Culmone, already holder of the modern day one-season riding record, set his sights today on Walter Miller's all-time mark of 388 winners set in 1906. Through yesterday Culmone has 354. He has one month left to get the 35 winners necessary to shatter Miller's mark.

Little Joe rode two winners at Bowie yesterday while his nearest rival, Willie Shoemaker, was blanked for the second straight day at Hollywood. Culmone, who several weeks ago, trailed Shoemaker by seven now leads Willie by ten.

Kirkwood, Turnesa Share Miami Lead

Miami, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—Miami's 27th annual $10,000 Open golf tournament went into the second round today with 31 par-busters scrambling for the lead.

Joe Kirkwood, Jr., who spends more time making movies than playing golf, and Jim Turnesa, youngest of the six golfing Turnesa Brothers, held a one-stroke lead over the field of 160 pros and amateurs. Both carded four-under-par 66's in the opening 18-hole round yesterday.

Twenty-nine others cracked the 35-35—70 par for the Miami Springs course in the first round.

Jimmy Demaret appeared the pace-setter in the opening round, then blew up in the last three holes. The Ojai, Calif., veteran was five under par going into the 15th hole. Then he went three over par for the next three holes and came in with a 31-36—67.

Frank Stranahan, former British Open champion and leading U. S. amateur from Toledo, Ohio, Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., and Dick Mayer of Old Greenwich, Conn., shared second low honors with Demaret at 67.

It was a hard day for the big-name stars. Sammy Snead, leading money winner this year, was forced to assemble a makeshift set of clubs at the last minute because his own didn't arrive from Chicago. Using clubs borrowed from four persons, including his wife, he managed a 69.

Defending champion Freddy Haas, Jr., found the greens too fast and tricky and came in with a one over par 35-36—71.

A Good Start

Miami, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—South Florida's 142-day winter thoroughbred racing season is off to an auspicious start. Three hundred more persons streamed through the gates at Tropical Park yesterday to wager $78,349 more than on opening day last year. The opening day crowd of 11,504 — topping last year's attendance by 303—wagered $502,245 compared to last year's $423,896.

Toronto 0, Montreal 0 (tie).

ALL THE WAY—Oklahoma established an all-time record for consecutive victories without resorting to the two-platoon system. The line, led by Right End Frankie Anderson, left, and aptly-named Left Tackle Jim Weatherall, right, plays offense and defense. So does Fullback Leon Heath, who backs it up.

Ez Has Four-Pound Pull Over Barone

Cincinnati, Dec. 1 (AP) — It looks as if heavyweight champ Ezzard Charles will go into his title bout here Tuesday night against Nick Barone of Syracuse with a weight advantage of three or four pounds. If he does, it will be the first time in two years that the sharpshooting Charles has been on the heavy end of the weights.

The 15-round scrap between Charles and Barone had to be postponed from last Tuesday until next week because of the heavy snowstorm which made the streets hazardous.

Orange-Sullivan League Schedule Favors Rec Five in Early Stages

Two More Home Games Before Road Opener

The Recreation cagers have two more Orange-Sullivan League games at home before they hit the road against Stewart Field on December 13, according to the official schedule released today.

The powerful Monticello club will be at the municipal auditorium Monday night, followed by the new Jeffersonville entry on December 11.

One remaining home date has yet to be fixed—that between the Recreations and the Stewart Field Panthers.

Pointing out the early season advantage of the schedule for the Recreations, Manager Andy Murphy said it would give the locals a good chance to weld into a unit before they embark on road trips.

"Our performance against Middletown satisfied me that we have real scoring punch," the Rec mentor said, "but the O-S League is pretty tough on visiting teams. That's where Kingston teams failed dismally in the past and we'll have to improve our performances if we expect to stay in contention."

The schedule for the first round follows:

December 4—Monticello, here.
December 11 — Jeffersonville, here.
December 13—Stewart Field, away.
December 17 — Middletown, away.
December 18—Woodridge, here.
January 4—Montgomery, away.
January 8—Montgomery, here.
January 9—Jeffersonville, away.
January 13—Monticello, away.
January 15—Newburgh, here.
January 27—Woodridge, away.
February 3—Newburgh, away.

Fall River, Mass. — Tony Cimmone, 151, Bayonne, N. J., outpointed Chester Slider, 155, Fall River, 8.

Minor Moguls Meet In St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—Baseball men are beginning to drift in here for the annual minor and major league baseball meetings.

The committee in charge reported the war scare is keeping some of the minor and major leaguers away, but it expects a good crowd.

The Western League plans to hold meetings today and tomorrow. The Texas League probably will hold a preliminary session tomorrow.

First business up for minor league representatives is the minor league draft set for Monday and Tuesday. The minors' first general meeting is Wednesday.

SPORTSMAN'S DIGEST

By Hal Sharp

AN INTRODUCTION INTO ICE FISHING TECHNIQUE

IF MORE THAN ONE TIP-UP OR "TRAP" IS TO BE USED, CHECK HOLE FREQUENTLY TO REMOVE NEW ICE FORMINGS.

CROSS-TIE TWO SAPLING PIECES AS ABOVE. THIS IS NOT AS GOOD AS A COMMERCIAL SPOOL TYPE HOLDING 30 FT. OF 18 LB. TEST LINE PERMITTING A SHORT RUN, BUT IT WILL CATCH SMALL FISH. BAIT WITH WORM OR MINNOW. TRY VARIOUS DEPTHS. CHECK YOUR STATE LAWS ON ICE FISHING.

Murphy Issues 46 Permits for Building in City

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy issued 46 permits for new buildings, alterations and repairs in the city during November at an estimated total cost of $98,760.

The total estimated cost was $212,774 on 79 permits in October, which was $114,014 more than last month, largely because of the $85,000 estimated cost of the Anderson building now under construction on upper Broadway.

Of permits issued last month, four were for new dwellings at $43,000, and eight were for non-residential structures at $30,000. These included a tool shed, $600; five private garages, $4,300, canopy, $100, and a market and office (DeGasperis building, 773-77 Broadway) at $25,000.

For alterations, repairs and additions to residental structures, 18 permits were issued at $14,325, and four were issued for the same purposes on non-residential buildings at $7,400. For oil tanks and burners 12 permits were issued at an estimated cost of $4,035.

Doyle Gets Term In State's Prison

Thomas E. Doyle, Jr., who was indicted recently on a charge of violation of Section 483, appeared in County Court this morning and entered a plea of guilty to that charge, a morals charge. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for Doyle.

A charge of violation of probation was lodged against Doyle, it being alleged that he violated probation which was imposed in June 1947, when Doyle came before the court on a grand larceny charge. The probation imposed in 1947 was suspended and on the grand larceny charge of 1947 Judge Cashin imposed a sentence of from 1½ to 3 years in Clinton State Prison at Dannemora on Doyle's plea of guilty to violation of that probation.

Imposition of any sentence on the present charge of violation of Section 483, was suspended at this time.

James Smith, of Kingston, indicted for violation of Section 1897 5-a, was sentenced to a term of 2½ to 5 years in Clinton prison as a second offender and execution of the prison sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation by County Judge John M. Cashin. Smith, it was charged, shot himself with a gun and then sought out the state troopers' barracks to seek a glass of water for relief. He was arrested for having a gun. Assistant District Attorney Vincent G. Connelly filed an information charging Smith with being a second offender, and on a plea of guilty to that charge, the prison sentence was imposed and suspended. Bail was exonerated.

Reports Are Given By Legion Women

Woodstock, Dec. 1—Woodstock Unit, 1026, American Legion Auxiliary, held its regular monthly meeting at the Legion rooms in Woodstock Wednesday night with Mrs. Reuben Jansen, president, in charge.

The following committee reports were given: Americanism, four hours work with Brownies and Girl Scout Drive by one member; child welfare work, $35 contributed to aid several non-veterans' children; a $5 donation to the Girl Scout drive was voted, also a $5 donation to the Community Christmas project; a $5 tuberculosis bond was purchased; a pledge of $50 to the American Legion Mountain camp and Women's Infirmary at Tupper Lake was made.

Mrs. Erwin Holumzer, the rehabilitation chairman, reminded all members to place their gifts for the Castle Point Gift Shop in the boxes in the Woodstock Food Market and Mower's Food Market before Dec. 4. The Legion and Auxilary members will meet at the Legion rooms Dec. 15 to wrap gifts for the veterans at Castle Point and will visit Castle Point Dec. 17 to distribute these gifts. Anyone wishing to go on the trip is asked to get in touch with Mrs. Reuben Jansen or Mrs. Erwin Holumzer in order that transportation may be arranged.

The Woodstock unit will hold a Christmas sale of food and fancywork at the Woodstock Dairy Friday, Dec. 8, at 10 a. m. The public is cordially invited.

It was voted not to have a meeting in December. After the meeting was adjourned refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Robert Buley and Mrs. Wesley O'Brien.

Cub Scouts Hold Court of Awards

Woodstock, Dec. 1—One of the liveliest Cub Pack meetings of the season was held Thursday night in the basement of the Dutch Reformed Church by Cub Troop 34. With an exceptionally large contingent of parents attending the court of wards presented the following boys their pins: Charles Beers, bobcat pin; John Wetterau, James Clementis and Gary Kaiser, wolf badges; John Wetterau, gold arrow; John Mellert, a gold arrow and three silver arrows; James Clementis, a gold arrow and two silver arrows; Gary Kaiser, a gold arrow and four silver arrows; Herbert Vogel, a gold and three silver arrows.

Charles Rapp, cub master of the troop reported that in addition to the large attendance of parents the meeting was outstanding for the exceptionally fine demonstration given by Cy Harriman on photography. Harriman began by taking pictures at the meeting and followed with an exhibition of dark-room processes in which the cubs participated. Working at a large center table, Harriman directed the boys through the necessary steps to the completion of a picture while their parents watched from an outer rim of almost complete darkness.

Plans for the cub pack Christmas party are under way and details will be announced.

Charles Rapp spoke of the response given to the cub newspaper drive. Many calls have been received and the boys have been busy making collections. The drive will continue for another month.

Masons Hold Benefit Dance for Youth Fund

Woodstock, Dec. 1 — The annual dance and entertainment was given Thursday night by the Masonic Square Club for the benefit of the youth welfare fund. Over 300 tickets had been sold for the event and the usual enthusiasm for these popular affairs was again in evidence.

Featured on his popular Solovox, Roger Baer of Kingston presented a group of musical numbers. Other popular entertainers who participated were Juanita Feuerbach, Saugerties, singer; and Shorty Russell, violinist of Centerville, who presented a novelty act using his violin as a comedy prop.

Walter Van Wagenen, president of the club, spoke during the performance and particularly thanked William Klippel and his committee for arranging the dance and entertainment.

Dancing was to the music of Don Pierson and his orchestra of Kingston.

Theologian . . .

the United States—at a session in which the council disbanded to merge with the new national council—reported on the atom bomb.

The panel of scholars held that use of the atom bomb could be justified morally under a specific set of circumstances.

This view was echoed Wednesday night by five leaders of Protestant churches, including Dr. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Dr. Nolde's statement on the atom bomb came a few hours after President Truman yesterday announced that use of the atom bomb is being considered in the present Korean crisis.

The international affairs director offered an eight-point personal program for action in the current emergency, asking the nation to guard against the following:

Hysteria which robs action of moral perspective and political wisdom, self-righteousness and hatred; unilateral action which rejects moral judgment as reflected by majority opinion in the United Nations; false pride and face-saving tendencies which close the door to open-minded and effective negotiation; complacency which comes with increasing military strength; against making our economy so dependent upon military production as to give the impression that we are unprepared to recognize the importance of economic health throughout the world; prejudice which refuses to see the evils in a situation which is predominantly good and thus deserving of support; and impatience in seeking a sound conclusion of the world's present plight.

Truman Requests

than previously provided for," Gurney said.

Rep. Short of Missouri, ranking Republican on the House Armed Services Committee, similarly said the new funds would bring the armed forces up to slightly under 3,000,000 men in about a year.

Quickened Buildup

This quickened build up of the army, navy and air force presumably will mean also a stepped up rate of draft inductions and perhaps some changes in the draft law.

However, Short said no changes in mobilization plans were discussed—that these would be dealt with after the first of the year.

Rep. Halleck (R.-Ind.) said he assured the President that as far as national defense items are concerned the Republicans will do all they can to get quick action.

Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) a member of the Appropriations Committee, said the request was larger than the lawmakers had expected.

Bridges and Gurney said there was no discussion at the conference on the question of using the atomic bomb in the Korea war.

Most of President Truman's cabinet sat in on his conference with the Congress members.

Murphy Issues 46 Permits for Building in City

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy issued 46 permits for new buildings, alterations and repairs in the city during November at an estimated total cost of $98,760.

The total estimated cost was $212,774 on 79 permits in October, which was $114,014 more than last month largely because of the $85,000 estimated cost of the Anderson building now under construction on upper Broadway.

Of permits issued last month, four were for new dwellings at $43,000, and eight were for non-residential structures at $30,000. These included a tool shed, $600; five private garages, $4,300, canopy, $100, and a market and office (DeGasperis building, 773-77 Broadway) at $25,000.

For alterations, repairs and additions to residental structures, 18 permits were issued at $14,325, and four were issued for the same purposes on non-residential buildings at $7,400. For oil tanks and burners 12 permits were issued at an estimated cost of $4,035.

Doyle Gets Term In State's Prison

Thomas E. Doyle, Jr., who was indicted recently on a charge of violation of Section 483, appeared in County Court this morning and entered a plea of guilty to that charge, a morals charge. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for Doyle.

A charge of violation of probation was lodged against Doyle, it being alleged that he violated probation which was imposed in June 1947, when Doyle came before the court on a grand larceny charge. The probation imposed in 1947 was suspended and on the grand larceny charge of 1947 Judge Cashin imposed a sentence of from 1½ to 3 years in Clinton State Prison at Dannemora on Doyle's plea of guilty to violation of that probation.

Imposition of any sentence on the present charge of violation of Section 483, was suspended at this time.

James Smith, of Kingston, indicted for violation of Section 1897 5-a, was sentenced to a term of 2½ to 5 years in Clinton prison as a second offender and execution of the prison sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation by County Judge John M. Cashin. Smith, it was charged, shot himself with a gun and then sought out the state troopers' barracks to seek a glass of water for relief. He was arrested for having a gun. Assistant District Attorney Vincent G. Connelly filed an information charging Smith with being a second offender, and on a plea of guilty to that charge, the prison sentence was imposed and suspended. Bail was exonerated.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Reports Are Given By Legion Women

Woodstock, Dec. 1—Woodstock Unit, 1026, American Legion Auxiliary, held its regular monthly meeting at the Legion rooms in Woodstock Wednesday night with Mrs. Reuben Jansen, president, in charge.

The following committee reports were given: Americanism, four hours work with Brownies and Girl Scout Drive by one member; child welfare work, $35 contributed to aid several non-veterans' children; a $5 donation to the Girl Scout drive was voted, also a $5 donation to the Community Christmas project; a $5 tuberculosis bond was purchased; a pledge of $50 to the American Legion Mountain camp and Women's Infirmary at Tupper Lake was made.

Mrs. Erwin Holumzer, the rehabilitation chairman, reminded all members to place their gifts for the Castle Point Gift Shop in the boxes in the Woodstock Food Market and Mower's Food Market before Dec. 4. The Legion and Auxilary members will meet at the Legion rooms Dec. 15 to wrap gifts for the veterans at Castle Point and will visit Castle Point Dec. 17 to distribute these gifts. Anyone wishing to go on the trip is asked to get in touch with Mrs. Reuben Jansen or Mrs. Erwin Holumzer in order that transportation may be arranged.

The Woodstock unit will hold a Christmas sale of food and fancywork at the Woodstock Dairy Friday, Dec. 8, at 10 a. m. The public is cordially invited.

It was voted not to have a meeting in December. After the meeting was adjourned refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Robert Buley and Mrs. Wesley O'Brien.

Cub Scouts Hold Court of Awards

Woodstock, Dec. 1—One of the liveliest Cub Pack meetings of the season was held Thursday night in the basement of the Dutch Reformed Church by Cub Troop 34. With an exceptionally large contingent of parents attending the court of wards presented the following boys their pins: Charles Beers, bobcat pin; John Wetterau, James Clementis and Gary Kaiser, wolf badges; John Wetterau, gold arrow; John Mellert, a gold arrow and three silver arrows; James Clementis, a gold arrow and two silver arrows; Gary Kaiser, a gold arrow and four silver arrows; Herbert Vogel, a gold and three silver arrows.

Charles Rapp, cub master of the troop reported that in addition to the large attendance of parents the meeting was outstanding for the exceptionally fine demonstration given by Cy Harriman on photography. Harriman began by taking pictures at the meeting and followed with an exhibition of dark-room processes in which the cubs participated. Working at a large center table, Harriman directed the boys through the necessary steps to the completion of a picture while their parents watched from an outer rim of almost complete darkness.

Plans for the cub pack Christmas party are under way and details will be announced.

Charles Rapp spoke of the response given to the cub newspaper drive. Many calls have been received and the boys have been busy making collections. The drive will continue for another month.

Masons Hold Benefit Dance for Youth Fund

Woodstock, Dec. 1 — The annual dance and entertainment was given Thursday night by the Masonic Square Club for the benefit of the youth welfare fund. Over 300 tickets had been sold for the event and the usual enthusiasm for these popular affairs was again in evidence.

Featured on his popular Solovox, Roger Baer of Kingston presented a group of musical numbers. Other popular entertainers who participated were Juanita Feuerbach, Saugerties, singer; and Shorty Russell, violinist of Centerville, who presented a novelty act using his violin as a comedy prop.

Walter Van Wagenen, president of the club, spoke during the performance and particularly thanked William Klippel and his committee for arranging the dance and entertainment.

Dancing was to the music of Don Pierson and his orchestra of Kingston.

Theologian . . .

the United States—at a session in which the council disbanded to merge with the new national council—reported on the atom bomb.

The panel of scholars held that use of the atom bomb could be justified morally under a specific set of circumstances.

This view was echoed Wednesday night by five leaders of Protestant churches, including Dr. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Dr. Nolde's statement on the atom bomb came a few hours after President Truman yesterday announced that use of the atom bomb is being considered in the present Korean crisis.

The international affairs director offered an eight-point personal program for action in the current emergency, asking the nation to guard against the following:

Hysteria which robs action of moral perspective and political wisdom, self-righteousness and hatred; unilateral action which rejects moral judgment as reflected by majority opinion in the United Nations; false pride and face-saving tendencies which close the door to open-minded and effective negotiation; complacency which comes with increasing military strength; against making our economy so dependent upon military production as to give the impression that we are unprepared to recognize the importance of economic health throughout the world; prejudice which refuses to see the evils in a situation which is predominantly good and thus deserving of support; and impatience in seeking a sound conclusion of the world's present plight.

Rep. Short of Missouri, ranking Republican on the House Armed Services Committee, similarly said the new funds would bring the armed forces up to slightly under 3,000,000 men in about a year.

Quickened Buildup

This quickened build up of the army, navy and air force presumably will mean also a stepped up rate of draft inductions and perhaps some changes in the draft law.

However, Short said no changes in mobilization plans were discussed—that these would be dealt with after the first of the year.

Rep. Halleck (R.-Ind.) said he assured the President that as far as national defense items are concerned the Republicans will do all they can to get quick action.

Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) a member of the Appropriations Committee, said the request was larger than the lawmakers had expected.

Bridges and Gurney said there was no discussion at the conference on the question of using the atomic bomb in the Korea war.

Most of President Truman's cabinet sat in on his conference with the Congress members.

THE HEATILATOR FIREPLACE actually saves and circulates the extra heat that ordinary fireplaces waste up the chimney. It is a hollow steel form around which the masonry is easily laid. Cool air is drawn from floor level, heated and returned to every corner of the room.

The Heatilator Fireplace is a correctly designed steel form around which any style fireplace can be built with greater ease and accuracy. By eliminating usual construction faults, this scientific unit prevents smoking. Surveys show that over half the old-type fireplaces smoke. Build around the Heatilator and be sure of success. Stop in and see the Heatilator, or phone for big folder and prices.

Sherrill Nominated To Head Churches

Cleveland, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill of Greenwich, Conn., presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, today was nominated as first president of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States.

The nomination is considered to be a nearly certain prelude to his election by the council's general assembly later today.

The 60-year-old bishop has presided over the nation's Episcopal communicants since 1947. He was a member of the President's Commission on Civil Rights.

Nomination of Bishop Sherrill and other officers was made by the council's general board in an executive session Wednesday night, but was kept secret until today.

November Weather Pattern Continues

(By The Associated Press)

The chilly and wet weather pattern of late November showed little change today—Dec. 1—over wide parts of the country.

There was some relief, however, in the Great Lakes region. There was no heavy snow—only flurries—and winds diminished. Heavy snow fell in western and central New York state yesterday, clogging secondary roads and closing many rural schools.

Temperatures moderated over the southeastern states and it looked like the end of the cold snap for Florida. The nearly week-long cold spell caused more than $10,000,000 damage to Florida crops, chiefly truck gardens.

There was snow in the northern Rockies and the northern plains temperatures were around zero in some northern border cities. Snow was forecast late today for the north central states and it was expected to spread eastward into the Great Lakes region tonight.

Meanwhile, cleanup projects continued in the eastern states which were struck by last weekend's snow, wind and sleet storms. Main highways over most of Ohio and Pennsylvania—two of the states hardest hit by snowstorms—were passable.

Mild and cloudy weather continued over the gulf states and the southwest. Temperatures were in the 80's yesterday in Texas and Arizona.

More U. S. Jobs

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—A boost in military establishment pay rolls lifted government employment during October for the fourth month in a row, a congressional committee on non-essential expenditures said today. The committee reported that the number of government workers reached 2,130,384 during October. That was a gain of 33,563 over September. An increase of 37,207 in the military establishment was offset somewhat by a drop of 3,644 in employment by the civilian agencies, the committee said.

The four-day program in observance of the 50th anniversary of Kingston Lodge, 550, B.P.O. Elks started Thursday night with initiation of a class of candidates, awarding of a life membership to the only living charter member of the organization and a welcome to dignitaries of the order.

Tonight there will be a dance and New York floor show for Elks and their wives and guests, and events are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday evenings to carry out the celebration.

Last night's Golden Jubilee class for initiation consisted of 50, who became members of Kingston Lodge at impressive ceremonies. Prior to initiation there was a turkey dinner for new Elks, their sponsors, officers and guests. Approximately 300 attended.

Peter Barmann, Jr., of the family once famous for its brewing interests in the Hudson valley was honored with a life membership as the only living charter member of Kingston Lodge, which was organized February 15, 1900.

For five years Kingston Lodge met at 562 Broadway, then moved to what was Kennedy Hall, Broadway and Thomas street, where rooms were maintained for six years. On April 12, 1912 the Elks dedicated their present building at 264 Fair street formerly known as the O'Neil property.

Frank McBride of Goshen, vice-president of the New York State Elks Association, was honored at the dinner as was Sydney Flisser, past exalted ruler of Kingston Lodge, who is district deputy of the East Central District. Exalted Ruler James G. Connelly presided.

One of the features of entertainment was the concert played by the clown band from Oneonta Lodge, dressed in circus regalia.

Besides the band Oneonta sent a large delegation of members to take part in the anniversary program. Other visitors came from Liberty, Middletown and Haverstraw.

Program Tonight

The dance and entertainment tonight is scheduled for 10 o'clock and there will be a buffet supper at midnight.

The show will consist of xylophone selections by Gene Jerome; tenor solos by Carlo Corelli of New York; accordion selections by Jack Brown and tap dancing extraordinary by Slip, Slack and Slide. Peter Rundal, master of ceremonies, who does a comedy role, will introduce the acts booked by John Schwalbach, esteemed leading knight, chairman of entertainment.

There will be a buffet supper Saturday at 6:30 p. m. Fiftieth anniversary ceremonies will take place at 8 p. m. in the lodge room for Elks. Speaker will be James R. Nicholson, past grand exalted ruler.

Annual memorial services will be held Sunday at 8 p. m.

Mother Kills Self And 3 Children

Englewood, N. J., Dec. 1 (AP)—An attractive 29-year-old wife shepherded her three small children into a closed garage last night and took their lives and her own with carbon monoxide fumes.

The bodies of socially prominent Mrs. Margaret Thompson Oppenheimer and the children, two of whom had been stricken with scarlet fever recently, were found slumped in the family station wagon by her husband, William.

He told police he returned home from work about 9:55 p. m. and found the house empty. Oppenheimer said he then went to the darkened garage and discovered his family dead.

Mrs. Oppenheimer, clad in blouse and dungarees, was found in the front seat of the station wagon. Her two young daughters, Ann Newton, 5½, and Mary Alice, 4, were found kneeling in the back as if at play. They were stricken with scarlet fever Wednesday. Her one-year old son, William, Jr., was found on the floor.

Police listed the deaths as suicide and triple murder.

Dr. Marshall Driggs said all four had been dead about four hours of carbon monoxide fumes from the car motor.

Oppenheimer is plant manager for the Archer Daniels Midland Vegetable Oils Co., of Edgewater.

Police said Mrs. Oppenheimer left a note in the kitchen of the home but they did not disclose its contents.

The largest strikes were against International Harvester Co., where 23,000 workers were idle, and Deere and Co., with 13,000 idle. Total work stoppages for the 10-months period were 4,010, compared to 3,240 in 1949 and 4,470 in 1946.

Build a FIREPLACE That Warms All the Room

THE HEATILATOR FIREPLACE actually saves and circulates the extra heat that ordinary fireplaces waste up the chimney. It is a hollow steel form around which the masonry is easily laid. Cool air is drawn from floor level, heated and returned to every corner of the room.

The Heatilator Fireplace is a correctly designed steel form around which any style fireplace can be built with greater ease and accuracy. By eliminating usual construction faults, this scientific unit prevents smoking. Surveys show that over half the old-type fireplaces smoke. Build around the Heatilator and be sure of success. Stop in and see the Heatilator, or phone for big folder and prices.
